A Libelous Telegram.

The telegram to the Associated Press agent in Philadelphia relative to the seizure of the Quaker City Oil Refinery, which has no existence here, was sent from Pittsburgh, and contained a gross libel on a prominent oil dealer. The author of the telegram should be sought out and punished, or the Telegraph Company may be mulcted in damages, as it was in the case of F. A. Howe, of Meadville, recently. The Philadelphia American, referring to the bogus dispatch, says:

The statement as made seemed to bear the impress of truth, yet, had it not accidentally escaped the notice of the editor, it would not have found a place in our columns, from the fact that some weeks ago the Associated Press was made use of by some parties to publish to the country a gross and malignant statement concerning a mercantile house in this city of acknowledged integrity, the gentlemen composing which house were of the same name and in the same business as the person alleged, in the dispatch published on Saturday, to have committed gross frauds on the revenue.

STATE NEWS.

Hon. Andrew Stewart, of Uniontown, who has been so seriously ill the last two weeks that his life was despaired of, is rapidly convalescing.

Prof. Light made an ascension at Perryville, Juniata county, on Thursday last, in his Montgolfier balloon, with a perilous termination. His balloon split from the hoop to the top and descended with alarming rapidity. As good fortune would have it Mr. Light lit in the Juniata river, and escaped without any serious injury.

The contract for the construction of the Dauphin County Soldiers' Monument has been awarded, and is to cost eleven thousand dollars. It will be erected at the corner of State and Second streets, Harrisburg.

John alias Whity Thackeray, a professional pickpocket, has been arrested and held in $1,800 for illegal voting in Philadelphia. It was shown that he voted at three precincts of the Fourth ward last election day. Some of his friends contend that he voted the Republican ticket, which is very likely, as he voted at Alderman McMullen's precinct.

The Sunbury American says: During the month of September there was shipped from Williamsport, Pa., by canal, 14,446,500 feet of lumber, snd by railroad 9,172,800 feet, being a total of 22,619,300 feet. During the same time there was shipped from Lock Haven and other points west of that place, by both the above modes of conveyance, 8,087,599 feet. The total shipments from Williamsport eastward since the first of January to this date amount to 134,974,700 feet, and from Lock Haven and vicinity 38,331,100 feet, making a grand total of 173,305,800 feet of lumber shipped from the places named in nine months. It will be seen that Williamsport enjoys about four-fifths of this immense trade.

The Allentown Dispatch says: It has been rumored Judge Maynard will go to Harrisburg and hand his resignation to the Governor, provided the man he selects is appointed to fill his place until next election. We have heard he desires Hon. J. Pringle Jones, of Reading, to succeed him. We think a man has no right to name his successor as an officer of the law in this country, but do not wish to protest at this time as we think any change will not prove detrimental to the people of this District.

The surviving members of the First Minnesota, which made a gallant fight at Gettysburg, have prepared a handsome memorial tribute to their fallen comrades, to face the Minnesota lot in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg. It consists of a large marble vase, set on a marble die, which rests on a marble pedestal, and this again on a larger granite base—the whole being about six feet high. The face of the pedestal has the following inscription: "The surviving members First Regiment Minnesota Infantry, to the memory of their late associates, who 'died on the field of honor,' at Gettysburg, July, 1863." On the reverse—"First Minnesota Volunteers." On one side is the inscription—"The dead shall not have died in vain." On the other—"All time is the millenium of their glory."

The firemen's parade in Lancaster on Thursday was the grandest affair of the kind that has ever taken place in the State outside of Philadelphia. Twenty-seven companies were in the line, one-half of which were from Philadelphia.

Rev. Ira Eddy, who has been preaching the gospel for fifty-two years, as a Methodist itinerant preacher, on Sabbath last filled the pulpit of Rev. J. C. Scofield, in New Castle. Fifty years ago he preached in New Castle, or rather where it is now located, but his audience of that time has passed away. His health has been very good up to a few weeks past, when he took a severe cold and is now laboring with an attack of spasmodic asthma. When in his usual health he preaches two and three times on Sabbath, and as often during the week as opportunity affords.

A meeting of the heirs of the Rothennel and Zimmerman estate will be held in Reading on the 14th of November next. The estate is of immense value and is estimated to be worth from $35,000,000 to $45,000,000. It is located in Holland, and consists of large tracts of land, bonds, bank stocks, railroad securities, &c. The object of the meeting to be convened in November, is to institute a permanent fund, elect a Board of Managers, and designate some suitable person to proceed to Holland with a view to the recovery of the estate. Many and perhaps the largest number of these heirs are residents of Berks, Lebanon, Dauphin, Schuylkill, Lancaster, Lehigh, Montgomery and Philadelphia counties.

A company for the manufacture of steel in Schuylkill county has been formed, and the works will soon be in course of construction.

The coal trade of Pennsylvania increases largely each year. It is stated that five hundred and fifty thousand tons more of anthracite coal have been sent to market this year than during the corresponding period of last year.

At present there are three new anthracite furnaces in process of erection on the Susquehanna—one at Harrisburg, one near Marietta, and the other at Wrightsville. Each of these places enjoys unusual facilities for the manufacture and shipping of anthracite pig.

Dr. John Moore, for many years a medical practitioner of Pittsburgh, died on Wednesday last, at his residence in Titusville, of quick consumption. Reconstruction in Georgia.

Ex-Gov. Jenkins, of Georgia, has applied to the President and General Grant to have an order issued to General Pope for the redistricting of that State in the election of delegates to the convention called under the Reconstruction act. He alleges that the election order of General Pope is such as to throw the control of the convention entirely in the hands of one political party. General Grant stated that his power under the law gave him no right to interfere in matters of that kind, as it confined him entirely to a supervisory power in removal of State officials. The President also declared that he had no right, under the law, to compel a change in the orders of General Pope. They will, therefore, be allowed to remain as at first issued, and under which the election of Georgia has been held.

Delaware and Maryland.

The sub-committee on the Judiciary continued to-day to hear evidence relating to the form of governments in Delaware and Maryland. The evidence related mostly to the condition of the former State. The investigation will be completed in time for a report to the House at the opening of the coming session.

Military Changes.

By direction of the President, so much of special orders as drops from the army rolls additional Paymaster Wm. F. Camp is revoked, and his resignation is accepted instead. By direction of the President, Captain D. W. Harding, now suffering with epilepsy, is wholly retired from the service.

Cabinet Meeting.

The Cabinet session to-day was slimly attended, and nothing of public interest transpired. Gen. Grant was not present and Secretary Seward was also absent.

Internal Revenue Receipts.

The internal revenue receipts do not show any improvements. They are now averaging about a quarter million per day, when the estimate was fixed in July at about one million per day.

Jeff. Davis's Trial.

Wm. M. Evarts, associate counsel for the Government in the Jeff. Davis case, was here in conference to-day with the Attorney General and District Attorney, regarding Jeff. Davis's case, and it was decided that there should be no delay whatever in the trial set at Richmond for November. If Judge Chase is not present, the trial is to proceed before Judge Underwood.

Reception of General Sheridan.

PROVIDENCE, October 22.—Gen. Sheridan arrived to-day. He breakfasted at Bristol, where he delivered a brief address in reply to a welcome by Gen. Richmond. At Warren, Governor Burnside introduced Sheridan to the people, and he responded in a few words. There was a similar affair at Drouneville. The train reached Providence at eleven. The General was met at the depot by a committee of the city council, the chairman of whom delivered an address, to which Sheridan replied. He was then escorted to the Governor's mansion, and in answer to an address made brief speeches of thanks. The General was escorted through the city by an entire division of Rhode Island Militia and the Grand Army of the Republic, the latter forming a guard of honor, and subsequently reviewed the troops. The parade was probably the finest military demonstration ever made in the State. The city is crowded with people from all the country towns. Sheridan received vocal and floral tributes all along the line of march. The streets were decorated with flags, mottoes, &c. This afternoon Gen. Sheridan visited Narragansett Park, where the October races commence to-day.

Sheridan was serenaded to-night by the Grand Army of the Republic. To-morrow he visits Brown University, and holds a levee in the City Hall.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Revolution in Cordova----Presidential Election in Argentine Republic---The Revolution in Peru.

NEW YORK, October 22.—A Buenos Ayres letter of September 14 says Cordova had experienced another revolution, but it was promptly quelled after a short fight.

The Minister of Foreign Relations for the Argentine Republic has resigned on account of the rumored impossibility of defeating the Paraguayans.

General Asboth, United States Minister, is still very low.

The Presidential election takes place in January, and the most influential paper in the country has nominated Sarmiento, the present Minister at Washington, for the position.

Advices from Peru to the end of September state that the City of Arequipa was entirely in the hands of the revolutionists, and is being fortified. Their programme is the overthrow of the administration of Perade and the restitution of the Constitution of 1854, reformed in 1860, the recognition of Col. Canseco as the Constitutional head. The clergy people and troops in and around Arequipa are said to have fraternized with the revolutionary forces. The loyalty to Prado of Gen. Bustament, who was sent to suppress the movement, is questioned. There were many arrests at Lima of suspected persons, and the opinion is growing that Prado's days are numbered.

VICTOR EMANUEL DENOUNCED.

Bitter Feeling Against France.

The Papal Revolution.

ROME, October 19, Evening.—The Count De Sartiges, French Minister to Rome, had an audience with Pius IX. He assured his Holiness, in the name of the Emperor Napoleon, that whatever circumstances should arise from the Garibaldian invasion of the Pontifical territory, or the attitude of the King of Italy, France would not fall in her aid to the Holy See and defense of its authority.

The garrison of Rome had been reinforced by volunteers enlisted for the most part in France and Spain.

The town of Ovie, on the Tiber, which was lately taken by the revolutionary invaders, has been recaptured by a detachment of the Papal army. There was no fight, as the Garibaldians retired from the place.

TOULON, October 20, Evening.—General Dumont, who is to command the French expedition to the Pontifical ports and territory of the Church, arrived here to-day from Paris. The General discharged quite recently the duty of Special Envoy from Napoleon to the Pope, on the subject of the present difficulty with Italy, and is regarded as well fitted to carry out the views of his Majesty, should war arise. The expeditionary force is embarking; six French war vessels, including two iron-clads, are in the harbor with steam up, ready to leave port to-night, or whenever the final order is received from Paris, and proceed to the Roman coast.

PARIS, October 20, Morning.—The Moniteur is silent on the subject of Rome and Italy. An official expression is eagerly looked for by the people.

The Etendard newspaper says that the military and naval forces destined for the Papal territory are quite ready to leave Toulon, but that the Imperial order to depart is held back till the final reply of King Victor Emanuel to the Emperor's note is received, and that the receipt of the Italian State paper may be delayed some few hours, owing to the existence of a ministerial crisis in Florence.

The Patrie publishes a telegraph dispatch reporting the march of 20,000 French troops from the military depot of Lyons to Toulon, and adds that another corps has been ordered to operate in another direction.

La France says: We learn that the advance guard of General Dumont's army embarked this morning at Toulon for Civiti Vecchia. It is certain that the French force will, in any case, arrive in Rome before the Italians.

It is stated that the Italian Government has declared itself powerless to arrest the bands of Garibaldian invaders crossing the frontier, or to protect the Holy See from their assaults.

Great excitement prevails in the streets, and the telegraph agency of Paris, so anxious are the people to learn the latest news from the different points—Rome, Florence and Toulon.

PARIS, October 21, Midnight.—The French fleet has left Toulon.

LONDON, October 21, Evening.—Dispatches from the continent up to this hour, report the Italy-Roman situation as improved very much. Italy satisfies the demands of France in relation to an exact observance of the terms and fulfillment of the duties imposed by the September Convention, and it is hoped that war between the two countries has been averted thereby.

There are no more French troops gone to Toulon, and the force which was held ready to sail at that port has been debarked. All the war preparations ordered in France have been countermanded.

General Cialdini, of the Italian army, a favorite soldier since the time of the Crimean war, succeeds Signor Rattazzi, Prime Minister of the King, and will proceed to form a new Cabinet, having an anti-revolutionary policy.

Cessation of Warlike Preparations.

PARIS, October 22.—The Moniteur, in an official article announcing the cessation of warlike preparations against Italy, says when France beheld the spectacle of an invasion of the Papal States by armed bands from the neighboring provinces of Italy, she could not, consistently with her duty, dignity and her national honor, suffer the September convention to be thus violated, if she prepared to send an army across the Alps, but Italy has since given ample pledges to fulfil her obligations of the treaty in the largest issue; and consequently all hostile preparations have been suspended by France.

Escape of Garibaldi.

FLORENCE, October 22.—Reports are in circulation that Garibaldi has succeeded in reaching Italy, and is now with his son Menotti.

Baden and the Confederation.

BERLIN, October 22.—It is reported the Grand Duchy of Baden will soon join the Confederation of the North German States.

Italian Ministerial Crisis.

FLORENCE, October 22.—The ministerial crisis is not ended. Gen. Cialdini has been unable to form a new Cabinet, and has given up the task. It is possible Rattazzi may remain in office with perhaps a change in the ministry.

Excitement.

Popular agitation is very great throughout Italy. An extremely bitter feeling is shown against France, while the Government of the King is loaded with reproaches by the people for yielding to the dictation of Napoleon. There have been several demonstrations of indignation in Florence. The populace gather in great crowds beneath the windows of the Government officers, and shout for "Rome, the Capital of Italy."

The Election Yesterday---Slight Disturbances in Richmond.

FORTRESS MONROE, October 22.—The election in Norfolk is not yet complete. The polls will be opened again to-morrow. The whites polled 1,384, and the blacks 1,692. It is supposed Waller, Conservative, is elected.

HAMPTON, October 22.—Col. White, Radical, is elected. No excitement.

ALEXANDRIA, October 22.—Hawkhurst, from Alexandria, and Nickerson, from Alexandria and Fairfax, both Radicals, are elected to the Convention. The majority for the Convention in Alexandria is 500. The blacks voted for the Radicals and the whites for the Conservatives, with few exceptions.

A dispatch to the Gazette from Louisa, Culpepper and Orange, indicate that these counties have gone Radical.

RICHMOND, October 22.—The election passed off more quietly than was anticipated. There were two incipient riots and two other disturbances, which were quelled by the military. The difficulties were caused by the attempts of Radical negroes to mob colored Conservatives. Troops were held in reserve in Capitol Square, and stationed at all the polls in the city, and cavalry patrolled the streets. The result of the first day's voting is 567 white majority. The canvass is active. 2,200 whites have not yet voted. The extreme radicals are making an effort to have the polls open three days, instead of two. The military under Gen. Granger, and the city police will be kept on duty all night. The polls will reopen in the city to-morrow. It is impossible to tell how the State has gone.

NEW YORK, October 22.—A special Richmond dispatch says the polls in each ward are crowded by voters, white and colored. In three of the five wards the Conservative ticket is five to one hundred ahead. Negro voters are prevented from voting the Conservative ticket. In Jefferson ward, at half-past nine this morning, a colored man openly voted the Conservative ticket. As he left the polls he was assailed by a mob of Hunnicutt Radicals. The mob wanted to hang him to the nearest lamp post. He was chased from the place of voting, and when the police interferred the mob offered forcible resistance. Clubs were used on both sides for a short time. The military came up, the infantry with fixed bayonets and cavalry with drawn sabres. They charged and dispersed the mob. The ringleaders were arrested and lodged in the station house. Fear of the soldiers prevented any attempt to rescue them. No disturbance has occurred up to this time at any other place of voting. The tobacco manufactories and other places where negro labor is employed, are closed, the employees refusing to work until the election is over. Bodies of troops are stationed at different points in the city, and will preserve order. The excitement is intense.

RICHMOND, October 22.—The vote to-day in Lynchburg was whites, 673; blacks, 761, being 372 less than the number registered. Terry's precinct—for the Convention, 335; against, 205; for the Conservative ticket, 206; Radical ticket, 332. Amherst—whites, 90; blacks, 313. Norfolk—whites, 1,384; blacks, 1,692, being 514 less than the number registered. Petersburg—for Convention, 211; against, 191. At Lynchburg the lives of the negroes who voted the Conservative ticket were threatened by radicals, and in a disturbance caused by them three negroes were wounded. Order was restored by the military and civil authorities. Pouletts precinct—for Convention, 453; against 285; Conservative, 295; Radical, 455. Staunton voted 439 for Convention and 472 against. The Conservative ticket is elected in Augusta county by 300 majority. There was a small white and full negro vote in the valley. The Convention there has been voted down, and Conservative men elected. News from Rockbridge insures a Conservative triumph in that county.

The money has been traced to certain parties who are officers or directors. They were behind hand in one of the small national banks up town, and who, to cover their retreat started a still smaller bank on their own account under the local banking law of New York. The money in default has since been repaid to the national bank from which these enterprising speculators had seceded.

CITY MATTERS.

STATE CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

Opening Session.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

Addresses, Devotional Exercises, etc

The State Christian Convention commenced its session in the First Presbyterian Church, Wood street, (Rev. S. F. Scovel's), yesterday evening, the spacious building being well filled with earnest and active workers in the cause of progressive Christianity. The meeting was in a measure preliminary to the important business which has called so many earnest Christians together from all parts of the country.

The meeting was organized by appointing Rev. E. B. Snyder, pastor of the North avenue M. E. Church, Allegheny, temporary Chairman.

Messrs. Thomas H. Rabe, A. B. Riggs and H. Porter were appointed a temporary business committee.

Mr. Snyder, on taking the chair, said: "We will commence the exercises this evening by singing the second hymn on the list of hymns prepared for this service."

The assemblage then joined in singing to that grand tune, "Old Hundred," four stanzas of the psalm commencing:

"All people that on earth do dwell
Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice,
Him serve with mirth, His praise forthtell,
Come ye before Him and rejoice." etc.

Mr. Snyder then read as the lesson of the evening the twelfth chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Romans.

OPENING PRAYER.

The chairman then led the assemblage in prayer as follows: Oh, God! Thou hast made us and not we ourselves; Thou didst form us men Thou didst put these immortal spirits within us, and Thou didst make us reasonable beings in that we have intelligence and the power of volition and the opportunity of accomplishing immense good for ourselves, and greatly benefitting those who surround us. We recognize not only the fact that thou hast made us and that we are reasonable beings surrounded with evidences of thy goodness; that it is our duty to improve these opportunities with which we are surrounded. We are dependent upon Thee for that Savior, and for that Religion whereby we are enabled to serve Thee acceptably; in ourselves we are weak, lost and undone. We humbly beseech Thee that for the sake of our Savior, who, in the fulness of time, Thou didst give to us, that we may appreciate Thy blessings. Grant us the Holy Spirit, that it may strengthen us with might, that we may worship Thee acceptably, with reverence and Godly fear. Look upon us as we are assembled this evening, and bless this Convention that is assembled here to glorify Thy name, and we pray Thee give to those who shall take part in the proceedings here to-night, and to each and every one of us the opportunity to discharge aright our duties, inspire our hearts with the spirit of truth that they may contribute to the interest profit, and render successful this present assemblage. Grant that every word that shall be said, and every deed, and every thought, shall glorify Thy name, and the institutions of our common christianity, and that thy church may be built upon the broad doctrine taught in thy sacred word of life. Hear us in this prayer, guide us by Thy counsel through life, and accept us through Christ our Savior, amen.

THE ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

The Chairman, at the close of the above prayer, said: "The address of welcome to the delegates and friends of this Convention will now be delivered by Oliver McClintock, Esq., President of the Young Men's Christian Association of this city.

Mr. McClintock then spoke as follows:

The Young Men's Christian Association of this city by reason of representing its various evangelical churches, and having been first named in the circular of call under which you have assembled, has been honored as the host in this reunion of the Christian brotherhood.

It is thus, that at the request of the Preliminary Business Committee, it has become my privilege to extend to you the earnest, honest right hand of fellowship, and express the the warm-hearted greetings and Christian welcome of the churches of Pittsburgh. I feel very deeply, however, my weakness and unfitness as the exponent of this glad family in Christ, as they welcome you to their hearts and homes, to their prayers and counselings over the interests of Chist's Kingdom. Let, therefore, the Apostolic salutation to the Ephesians be to-night their message of welcome, and the golken chain that shall link heart to heart, and intercommunicate the currents of mutual love and common sympathy which bind together Christ's family on earth.

Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. As it was with this Apostle, so let it be with this convention: that Christ shall be "all and in all" the motive of every act and the energy of every effort. Let love to Christ be the Shibboleth by which all men shall pass the gateway of each one's heart and sympathy.

As with Paul, Christ's Cross and the Great Sacrifice were ever present realities, and made His life a miracle of toil and achievement for the Master, so let us raise here, an unseen, but spiritually present cross and crucified Redeemer. Let us gather at its foot, and in our discussions keep in view its divine burden of suffering and atonement for the sin of the world. May such a presence and such a looking fill every member with a deep and abiding sense of the personal debt of love, and the individual responsibility of each disciple, in the Master's work. May God's Spirit write in ineffaceable letters of fire and light, upon the hearts of the Christians of Pittsburgh, the significance and lesson of the facts which appear in the table of religious statistics of this city, which will be presented to this convention. That in a total population of one hundred and sixty-three thousand, of which forty-two thousand are Roman Catholic, and one hundred and twenty thousand nominally Protestant; of the latter forty thousand do, but eighty thousand do not attend church—twenty-four thousand are church members, but of these, how many are faithfully watching like the "wise virgins," or diligently laboring like the "good stewards," the Heavenly Bridgroom and the Divine Householder only knoweth. Were all the Protestant churches filled to their utmost capacity, ninety thousand of the total population, or forty-seven thousand of the Protestant population would still be without the doors. Seven thousand children who are in the public schools do not attend Sabbath School. There are six hundred and thirteen licensed liquor saloons, and one hundred and twenty-three churches; or in the proportion of five saloons to one church, the latter open for one day, the former for six and sometimes seven days and nights in the week. If such be the facts in this "city of churches," this center of religious life and power, how great at least in an equal degree must be the spiritual needs in other sections? How urgent is the call for the church of Christ to awake and realize the magnitude and pressing importance of the work that has been given her to do.

I believe that the christian ministry does realize this, but I fear the christian membership does not. And I do hope and pray that whatever else of blessing may be given, this one good may result from this Convention, that every lay member and private christian here shall go away realizing in his or her innermost soul that to-day labor, and sacrifice, and self-denial, are as much conditions of true discipleship in the church of Christ as they were in the days of the Apostles and martyrs; that every merchant, mechanic and farmer here, who has the love of Christ in his heart, will go hence inquiring, "Lord, what will Thou have me to do?" and at once address himself in his own sphere and duties to the work of winning souls, relying upon God's Spirit for success, and remembering that "he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again rejoicing, bringing his sheaves."

REMARKS OF MR. SNYDER.

After the address of welcome had been concluded the Chairman, Rev. E. B. Snyder, spoke as follows:

As the temporary chairman of the meeting I have been requested to make some remarks towards setting on foot those agencies which we hope will secure for our our efforts success. I can, perhaps make no better speech than to say amen to the suggestions which have been made this evening. I am happy to meet you this evening under these favorable circumstances. We are here not as sectarians, not to represent the interests of any particular denomination, but as Christians of a common household, having one faith, having one hope, and having one blessed Lord and Savior. We are not here, therefore, to advance the interests specially of any particular denomination; not to perfect any selfish denominational plans, but as I take it we are here in this convention, assembled to glorify our common Savior, and to do what we can to build up His kingdom among the children of men, and it will be our object to reach out an arm that shall take hold of the young men of this and other communities, and bring them to the Lord. I think I speak the sentiments of all present when I say we meet for a purpose which must receive the approval of every Christian, and is in accordance with the principles of the Gospel. To accomplish the object of elevating the youth of the land is one of the great designs of our Christianity. Our Christianity is benevolent and far reaching; it is like the light from the gas jets radiating in every direction, or like the sun that passed over our heads to-day, spreading out its rays of warmth and cheerfulness over all. Christianity is full of benevolence, and full of plans to benefit the world; catholic, generous and expansive, it repudiates all sects and isms and stretches out its arms to save humanity. It has been given us as a sustaining power in this world of activity, and this world is the scene of its labor and of its ever-spreading triumphs. It affords me great pleasure to meet so many here to-night, who are united in the great purpose of spreading the benevolent principles of our Christianity. It affords me pleasure to-night that I am in the presence of so many Christian hearts, actuated, I trust, by an earnest purpose to send out the light of the cross of Christ.

Now, I suppose you are all acquainted with the objects of this convention, as it has been announced by the press and the pulpit. I suppose that this meeting this evening bears about the same relation to the coming exercises of the meeting that a good introduction does to a sermon. We are here to-night to get our hearts and minds in proper condition for the business that is to come. We caannot accomplish the great end we have in view unless we are baptized with the spirit of Christ.

I wish to speak one word more, and I have no wish to occupy the time of the Convention unnecessarily. The object had in view by the assembling of these delegates from distant States will be a total failure unless we have the presence of the Master; unless we are baptized with the Holy Spirit; unless we have tho spirit of God to direct us. Unless we have this, the object of our meeting will be in vain. The speaker concluded his remarks by urging upon his audience in eloquent terms to cultivate a prayerful spirit.

The convention then joined in singing:

Come, Holy Spirit, heavenly Dove,
With all thy quick'ning powers;
Kindle a flame of sacred love
In these cold hearts of ours.

Rev. A. C. McClelland led the assemblage in prayer, after which the hymn "Happy Land" was sung:

"O, happy day that fixed my choice
On thee, my Savior and my God!"

ADDRESS OF REV. MR. JILLET.

Rev. S. H. Jillet then said: To me such an assemblage of Christians for such an object, is itself calculated to stir every Christian's heart. I can but hope that, if we begin aright, lifting up our hearts to God, we shall experience a glorious meeting. If our hearts are only melted by the fire of His Spirit, our tongues will become bold for Christ and his cause. I am glad for the suggestion of the chairman as to the manner of conducting this meeting. I am glad that no one is to be called upon, but that all may await until the fire begins to burn. Let this be a free meeting, and let our hearts be warmed with love to God and love for souls. Let us pour out our hearts in earnest prayer—go home praying, go to our closets praying, and come here to-morrow praying. We must all be more earnest, and have our hearts touched with fire from off the altar of God.

DEVOTIONAL EXERCISES.

After prayer the Lynn "Cornation" was sung:

"All hail the power of Jesus's name,
Let angels prostrate fall, etc."

Rev. A. K. Bell, D. D., of Allegheny, led in prayer.

Rev. B. W. Chidlaw, of Cincinnati, said what we want as a Conventton, is the indwelling spirit of God. If we lay hold on the blessed promise of the Gospel the blessing will be rarely vouch-safed.

Rev. J. K. Anderson led in prayer.

Rev. Mr. Lowell called on Mr. McIntyre, of St. Louis, who said:

Mr. Chairman: I did not expect to be called upon to-night, but I would speak in favor of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. A gathering in the Capitol of Indiana was held, and in my city, last week, and one is also to be held in Minnesota, another in Illinois, and another in Kansas. These facts indicate a deep seated and growing interest. The great question is, how can the masses of those who are not attendants upon or interested in the ministration of God's Holy word. We who are here from the West came to listen, and expect to hear words of counsel, and hope to hear suggestions that we can adopt in our great central city of the West, on the banks of the Mississippi river—agencies which you have employed, and which we would be glad to follow.

The congregation then joined in singing the hymn:

"Must Jesus bear the cross alone."

Mr. Lone then made an excellent prayer.

Mr. Louis, a Jew, who acts as a missionary among the members of that sect, spoke a few words in behalf of his countrymen, saying that nothing had been said in reference to them, and asking that they be remembered by the congregation in their prayers.

A member of the congregation then made a prayer in which he refered to the number of both Jews and Gentiles who were perishing by the way, and prayed that they might be saved.

A brief address was then delivered by one of the audience, who said the great object of Christianity was to arrest those on the downward course to damnation. If we asked and obtained the spirit of God, as a fire burning within us, then we would do unusual things, and go out as our blessed Lord, and preach and pray on the sea shore or on the mountain side. We would do a great work in saving souls if influenced by the Spirit of God.

A prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Locke, of the Liberty street M. E. Church.

The hymn "Sweet Rest," was sung by the congregation.

FATAL ACCIDENT—BOY KILLED.—An accident occurred at the Coal Works of Messrsr H. B. Hays & Bros., on Street's Run, about three o'clock on Monday afternoon, resulting in the death of a little boy named Lewis Lepro, aged about four years. It appears that while the hauler was taking a train of cars laden with coal to the river, three little boys, among whom was the deceased, at the half-way parting, attempted to get on the cars while in motion. The little boy, Lepro, missed his hold and fell between the cars, several of which passed over his face and breast, mangling him terribly, and killing him instantly. This is the second accident that has occurred at this road within a week, a little son of Mr. John Bradley having been seriously injured a few days ago by the cars.

A PETRIFIED BODY.—The workmen engaged in removing the remains from the old Methodist Burying Ground, in the Seventh Ward, were somewhat astonished a day or two ago, in exhuming the remains of a body interred twenty-two years ago, to discover that the body was petrified, and with the exception of one foot and the part of one ankle, which had totally disappeared, was in a remarkable state of preservation, while not a single trace of the coffin was discernable.

BASE BALL MATCH.—A match game of base ball was played on the West Common, Allegheny, on Friday afternoon, between the Allegheny Club, of that city, and the Mutual Club, of East Liberty. At the end of the sixth inning game was called on account of the darkness. The match was won by the Allegheny, who scored forty-nine runs to the Mutuals sixteen.

PITTSBURGH CHURCH GUILD.—The Pittsburgh Church Guild will hold their annual meeting this evening in the Sunday School room of Trinity Church, Sixth street. The annual reports of the President and Treasurer will be read, and officers elected to serve for the ensuing year. Addresses will also be delivered on the prospects and condition of the Guild. All friends and members are invited to be present.

NEW FENIAN CIRCLE.—A new Fenian Circle, to be known as the "Limestone Ridge," was organized in Oakland on Saturday evening by John F. Finnerty, Organizer of the Fenian Brotherhood in Western Pennsylvania. P. Welsh was elected District Center of the Circle, and Patrick Duffy, Secretary. A number of new members were enrolled.

CONTEST FOR A CANE.—At the German Catholic Fair in Sharpsburg, a gold headed cane was contested for by Mr. J. Montzhammer, of Sharpsburg, and Mr. Chalfant, of Etna. The cane, which netted a handsome sum to the church, was won by Mr. Chalfant, who received 680 votes to Mr. Montzhammer's 122.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

The United States District Court met at ten o'clock yesterday morning. The list of Grand and Traverse Jurors was called over.

Mr. C. S. Fetterman, of this city, on motion of Hon. J. P. Penny, J. B. Myers, of Franklin, Venango county, on motion the District Attorney, Henry Souther, of Elk county: on motion of T. M. Marshall, Esq., and George F. Baer, of Somerset county, on motion of R. B. Patterson, Esq., were admitted to practice in this court.

The following is the list of Grand Jurors: Foreman—Hon. Eli Slifer, Northumberland county; George W. Thompson, Union county; M. Linn, Union county; James Mitchell, Butler county, Robert D. Stevenson, Butler county; O. M. Irvin, Juniata county; E. S. Osburn, Luzerne county; Harry Hakes, Luzerne county; Francis E. Campbell, Lycoming county; W. W. Davis, Juniata county; F. F. Marshal, Erie county; Wm. Stewart, Mercer county; W. S. Walker, Erie county; Samuel H. Keller, Center county; S. S. Seely, Lycoming county; John H. Negley, Butler county; Jermiah Lyons, Juniata county; R. W. Jameson, Juniata county.

CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

Judge McCandless delivered the charge to the Grand Jury, alluding to the duties enjoined upon them by their oath, and reading a part of the code which indicated their duties. His Honor concluded his charge as follows:

"It would be impossible for me to give you a list of all the offenses within the jurisdiction of the Courts of the United States. Of course a great many offenses have originated out of the war that had no existence before. The internal revenue law, has created a great number of offenses that had no existence previous to the war.

"Congress, in order to sustain the Government of the United States, passed a law to raise money to pay the public debt, and however the people may cavil about it, they ought to pay their taxes cheerfully, because their money was used in establishing—more firmly establishing this great Government; but there are persons who will try of course to evade all these provisions of the internal revenue law, in refusing to take out licences; in their frauds upon the revenue and whisky taxes, which has become a great evil. Our time, during the last August term, was principally taken up with trying cases of this description. The penalties are of course severe. You have not only power to indict the party, bnt by a proceeding in rem. where the case is against the property and not the person; where the distillery and everything used in the manufacture of the liquor and even the whisky itself may be confiscated and sold. These cases necessarialy arise from the necessities of the government to raise sufficient money to pay the interest on the public debt, and establish a sinking fund, with which to pay the principal.

Next, gentlemen, you have cases of counterfeiting. This is a great evil in the land. It has gone so far that they have even counterfeited the bonds in which the people have invested their money. Even the counterfeits on bonds have been so skillfully executed that they have deceived the officers of the Treasury. The men who are engaged in the business of manufacturing counterfeit money are not ordinary men. One man was tried before me a year ago, who was a splendid specimen of a man, both intellectually and in personal appearance. He was one of the Princes of counterfeiterfelters, but was caught in the very act of making the money. After he had a fair trial, and was convicted, I believed it to be my duty to give him the full extent of the law—fifteen years imprisonment and five thousand dollars fine. The latitude given to Judges is greater than I desire. The sentence may be from one year up to fifteen, and we have, of course, to graduate the sentence according to the enormity of the offense.

The counterfeiting of this fractional currency reaches not only the capitalist, but effects, also, the lower classes of community, and it has, therefore, become a great evil. People will ordinarily look at a ten dollar note before taking it, but the party who takes fifty or twenty-five cents, usually puts it in his pocket. We have a vast amount of this money in circulation, and there are many different persons engaged in the business. There are the manufacturers, the wholesale dealers, the retail dealers, and the "shovers." The dealers buy it at a discount of thirty-five, forty, or fifty per cent.; there are four or five different classes and all have their peculiar functions in committing this great fraud upon the Government. I am informed by the District Attoney that there will be some cases of this description at the present term. The currency that is issued by the National banks is also counterfeited. Greenbacks come directly from the Treasury to the peeple, while the National bank currency is issued from the banks. The penalty for counterfeiting is the same in both cases.

Sometimes parties commit perjury in order to draw pensions from the Government, but we have had very few cases of that kind. To the honor of our soldiers be it spoken, when it has been committed, it has not been by them.

The Judge concluded his charge by instructing the Grand Jury to observe secrecy in its proceedings.

CASES CONTINUED.

The following cases were continued at the instance of the District Attorney:

United States vs. twenty-five barrels of distilled spirits, owned by Hess & Robbins.

United States vs. four barrels of whisky, owned by Patrick Sheridan.

United States vs. twenty-seven barrels of whisky, owned by James Robinson.

United States vs. the following parties: Thos. S. Hess, Dr. James W. Robinson, Thomas T. Hess, John F. Robbins, Miles Mellott.

In the case of the United States vs. James Ralston and James McPherson, a nolle pross was entered as to Ralston. McPherson plead guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars and costs.

INJUNCTIONS DISSOLVED.

The Court ordered that the injunctions issued in the following bankruptcy cases be dissolved: A. Saltzman, Timothy Hanley, Buckling & Monks, Charles L. Hessell.

The Grand Jury found true bills against John S. Weyland, Wm. Schofield, B. P. & J. Park, Jr., Helen Sullivan, Daniel Sheratt, Helen Scanlon, Wm. Paul, Wm. Thompson and Franklin Hoyle, indicted for carrying on the business of retail dealers without a license. A true bill was also found against Joseph Hogle for selling beer without having paid the revenue tax.

The indictment against Wm. King for passing counterfeit money was ignored.

The case of Gordon, McMillen & Co., Stoctten & Allen was taken up. This was an issue in bankruptcy to test the question of the bankruptcy of the defendants. The Judge delivered the charge to the jury, and they retired. No verdict had been rendered at the adjournment of the court.

A JUROR TAKES REFRESHMENTS.

About noon the jury in the above case came down for the purpose of receiving instructions from the Court, and when they returned to their room there were only eleven jurors present. The twelfth in a few minutes made his appearance, and stated that as he was hungry he had been over to a saloon for something to eat. The Court, upon being informed of the fact, immediately discharged the jury from further consideration of the case, and the "refreshed" juror was told by the Court that his ignorance of the law in this respect would excuse him this time, but in the future he could not expect similar leniency.

BLOCKADING THE STREETS.—Frequent complaints having been made of the annoyance occasioned by the blockading of Beaver street, Allegheny, between Ohio and Water, by farmers leaving their wagons on the street over night and during their stay in the city, and all notices to have the nuisance abated being disregarded, Mayor Morrison, on Monday night, dispatched the night police to remove the obstructions. Accordingly, about fifteen wagons were captured and taken to the square on the west side of the Mayor's office. Yesterday morning the owners of the wagons appeared in force, and were much troubled over the supposed confiscation of their property. They plead ignorance to the city ordinance in regard to the obstruction of streets, and upon promising not to renew the nuisance, their property was restored to them.

ANOTHER MILITARY COMPANY.—Another new military company is being organized in Allegheny, and a preliminary meeting was held on Monday evening in the Soldiers' League Hall, on Federal street, over which Captain J. R. Oxley presided. The meeting was largely attended, and considerable interest was manifested in the organization. Several well-timed addresses were made, and upwards of forty members enrolled their names. The company is being recruited by J. C. Martin, a veteran soldier, and promises to be an excellent organization. Another meeting will be held on Monday evening next, when the required number of members, it is expected, will be secured, and the permanent organization effected.

STABBING AFFAIR IN "HAYTI."—A colored ball was given at a house on the corner of Arthurs and Duncan streets, in the Seventh ward, on Monday night, and during the evening a fight occurred, in which one Volney Lucas was stabbed. The stab was inflicted on the right shoulder, the wound being some eight inches in length. Rachel Blackson, wife of Julius Blackson, who is not unknown to police fame, is charged with having done the stabbing. Lucas was taken to Dr. G. H. McNary's office, where his wound was dressed. The stab was in the fleshy part of the shoulder, and is not of a serious character.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.—On Sunday night a noise was heard in the basement kitchen of Mr. S. T. Paisley's residence, in the Ninth ward. The servant girl, on going thither, discovered two men in the act of searching the pockets of an overcoat belonging to Mr. Paisley. She screamed vigorously, which caused the burglars to beat a hasty retreat through the door in the rear part of the house, and nothing more was seen of them.

UNITED SOCIAL PRAYER MEETING.—It is requested that the various Churches of the city omit their usual Wednesday evening services, and attend en masse the session of the Christian Union Convention to-night, at the First Presbyterian Church. A united social prayer meeting, in connection with the exercises of the Convention, will make this evening a memorable one among all Christians of this community.

PICKPOCKETS IN THE MARKET.—The light-fingered gentry were at their avocation yesterday morning in the Allegheny market. A countrywoman had her pocket picked of her pocket-book containing about seventeen dollars, and several other ladies were victimized for small amounts.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL.—A great religious revival has been going on in the John Wesley Chapel for five weeks past, and is still in progress. The church is crowded every night. The services are conducted by Dr. N. H. Williams and Charles Miller, Daniel Jackson and other Trustees.

MEDICATED INHALATION

Catarrh and Its Treatment by Dr. Aborn, of 134 Smithfield street, Pittsburgh.

To the Editor of the Pittsburgh Commercial:

As I said in my introductory letter, catarrh is one of the most prevalent and important diseases that afflict the people in this latitude—prevalent because of the neglect of slight colds, and important because that neglect, leads, very generally, to serious consequences. Catarrh is an affection of the mucous membrane of the air passages, and may be located in either the nose, throat, or lungs. Cold in the head, sore throat, laryngitis and bronchitis are all catarrhal affections. The inflammation generally commences in one part, and if neglected rapidly extends to the others—even to the stomach, causing loss of appetite, and frequently extending to the Eustachian tube, producing deafness. The first symptoms of catarrh usually noticed is a dryness and difficulty of breathing through the nose, the mucous membrane becoming red, inflamed and swollen. Frequent and violent fits of sneezing ensue, and often severe pain in the head. The body is heated, face flushed, the pulse increased in frequency, and a thin acrid discharge from the nose succeeds. Gradually this discharge becomes denser, changes to a yellow color, and, in a brief time, if not arrested by medical skill, developes into chronic catarrh.

The treatment of catarrh has of late become a specialty with eminent physicians, and the experience of those who practice medical inhalation has determined that this system has been the most successful. Through inhalation healing medicines are conveyed directly to the seat of the disease, and if applied in season, will arrest catarrh before it extends beyond its incipient stage. If the disease is permitted to develope itself, the constitution becomes more or less affected, and remedies are then necessary to restore lost vigor. Experience has proved that catarrh, if permitted to develope itself in all its stages, inevitably results in consumption. How necessary, then, that the afflicted should immediately apply for relief to those skilled in the treatment of the disease. On Saturday next, I shall refer to Chronic Catarrh. E. S. ABORN, M. D.

PITTSBURGH, October 22, 1867.

NOTE.—Dr. Aborn may be consulted upon all diseases incident to the eye, ear, head, throat, and organs of the chest, at his Medical and Surgical Rooms, 134 Smithfield street.

The Daily Commercial

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1867.

The Commercial is the largest daily paper in the State, and gives daily one-fourth more reading than any other paper in Pittsburgh. It is the only Pittsburgh paper that uses the telegraph liberally, gives full market reports, and all the news of the day.

THE November number of the Atlantic Monthly contains a well-written local sketch by R. P. NEVIN, Esq., of this city, entitled "STEPHEN C. FOSTER and Negro Minstrelsy." On our third page this morning will be found the principle part of the sketch.

JUDGE KELLEY, in a speech before a GRANT meeting in Philadelphia a few nights since, declared that the General, in his political sentiments, was in full accord with Congress. Were we to print all that is said in favor of GRANT for the Presidency, or even a list of the papers and public men that have declared for him, we should encroach materially on our space. It is a fact to be noted, that while scores of Republican papers have proclaimed for GRANT, the Tribune is the only paper which has come out for another candidate—and it did it only after a fashion.

THE prospect of an easy victory in New York, with which the Democrats have been comforting themselves, has so materially diminished that the sharpest-sighted of them cannot see it. Though still holding on to the pretended belief of being able to carry the State, their estimate has run down to the lowest figure consistent with the claim of a majority. On the other hand, the Republicans, who were not a little shocked by the October elections, have regained their equilibrium, and are going into the canvass with a courage that usually betokens success.

THERE is a good deal of talk as to what Congress when it meets will do about reconstruction. The subject is highly important no doubt; and it is satisfactory that so much is known as to what will and will not be done about it. But the questions of debt, revenue, taxation, etc., are important also. In regard to what Congress will do with them, however, we hear little or nothing said. Is it possible that our public men are giving them no reflection; that while, in regard to reconstruction, any number of statesmen and patriots will be ready to tell Congress and the country what is just the thing to be done, no one will be ready with a matured idea in regard to our great financial questions?

IT has been the custom of a class of philosophers, from time immemorial, when failing to discover any other reason for a thing, to ascribe it to "the eternal fitness of things." The Post appears to be driven to this extremity, to justify its indorsement of the almost Governor of Ohio for United States Senator from that State. With a cold shoulder to PENDLETON, from whom it has drawn its patent method of debt paying, and also from Saint CLEMENT, the Democratic martyr, the Post goes in entirely for Judge THURMAN for Senator, because it is agreeable to the eternal fitness of things. The Democratic members of the Ohio Legislature will please make a note of this reason and give it due weight when the election of Senator comes off.

IT is a gratifying sign that influential Republican papers in New York are talking straight out against and in some instances bolting nominations not fit to be made. The effect is wholesome and will be permanent. In some instances conventions have reconsidered their action and unfit nominees made haste to get out of the way; while others, taking warning, have presented candidates who would have stood no chance but for this spirit of wholesome insubordination. Not only in New York but everywhere the idea is becoming prevalent, that fidelity to principle may sometimes be best shown through rebellion against caucus. When bolting bad nominations becomes fashionable good ones will be the rule, and the general welfare promoted through faithfulness and competence in office.

IT is not calculated to strengthen our credit or reassure public confidence in the management of our national concerns, that those who have the greatest influence with the President are ignorant, corrupt adventurers, and, in some respects, the least deserving persons in the community. The crusade against Secretary MCCULLOCH proceeds in a good measure from this source, and no one is able to say it will not succeed. It is no secret that the Secretary has for some time felt himself hampered and compromised by the corrupt and corrupting influences which surround the President, thrusting bad men into offices of vast responsibility, and good ones out. We suspect that no inconsiderable part of the whisky frauds and consequent loss of revenue is owing to this cause. There evidently is something in that quarter that needs reconstructing and the early attention of Congress.

WE wish the following, which is taken from an aticle on "Journalism and Dead Heads," in the Cincinnati Commercial, might be read profitably by those "whom it may concern," to wit: that rather numerous class of persons who act as though when they ask an editor to print gratuitously, they are not taking money out of somebody's pocket:

"Where proprietors of a public journal spend a thousand dollars a week in telegraphic dispatches, correspondence and the means of collecting intelligence of all sorts, and pay ten thousand dollars per month for white paper to print the news on, and a thousand dollars a week for type-setting—the newspaper which is the product of all this outlay is worth something—is an article not to be given away freely as water at a spring—is not to be appropriated at the counter of the publisher without money or price, by every person who has a speaking acquaintance with one of the employees in the office."

The public meeting for private or public objects which resolves to print its proceedings in a newspaper without pay, might, with just as much propriety, resolve to dine at the best hotel in reach at the expense of the proprietor.

DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

The time for talking about candidates for the Presidency comes round as naturally as nutting time or the skating season. It has already been inaugurated for the next election. In the calculations of aspiring politicians, it is something to be talked about as a candidate for nomination. If it does not issue in making one, in fact, a nominee or even a candidate for nomination, it gives his name circulation, and may help him to some more humble position.

The Hon. G. H. PENDLETON is thus talked of as a candidate for nomination by the Democrats. It would not have been saying much a month ago, to say that the Democrats of Ohio and the Northwest were favorable to him. And it is not much more, to say it now, since the negro question has been disposed of in his State, and the minds of the people can revert to the national questions involved in the Presidential election, where Mr. PENDLETON'S record is well known, and has been well condemned by the patriotism of the country. As the representative and the champion of a financial idea repugnant to the credit as well as the moral sense of the nation, his chances, among men who favor the keeping of honest engagements, will not be bright. The hopes drawn from the success of FRANKLIN PIERCE against the conqueror of Mexico rest on a frail foundation, if they anticipate a similar issue for G. H. PENDLETON against the conqueror of the rebellion.

But it is only as a Democratic candidate for nomination that he is talked of. Mr. SEYMOUR is also talked of and with quite as much propriety and enthusiasm. And the late General MCCLELLAN is also resuscitated and is expected to return to the Western Continent and the recognition of the Democracy, after a happy period of four years oblivion. And it is presumed that the General is still competent to organize a defeat of the Democratic party as ably as either of the other gentlemen named. Besides, it is highly probable that amid the exhilaration produced by the imaginary triumphs of the party, additional names will be talked of in connection with the Presidency. We feel assured that the distinguished individual—at present in a neighboring Dominion—who is soon expected to revisit the familiar scene of his former glory in Richmond, has very many enthusiastic friends in the Democratic party who would throw all the rest overboard for him. And if gratitude has not fled from the Democracy to brutish beasts, another humble individual may turn up as a candidate. His name has long waved already in the chosen and exclusive organ with which this city is honored.

THE LEGISLATURE AND FREE RAILROAD LAW.

We take it for granted that combinations are being formed, with reference to the organization of the Legislature in January. The friends of a Free Railroad Law have a deep interest in the choice of Speaker of the Assembly, who will have the making of the Committees. It is to be hoped, therefore, that those members—and we take it they comprise a large majority of the Republicans—who intend not to do anything to impair the prospect the State has for a genuine Free Law, will commit themselves to nothing that will interfere with perfectly free action when the time comes, in behalf of a Speaker who is with them on this great question.

The friends of a Free Law have been so many times and so many ways defrauded and betrayed that they should exercise great caution now. It is a fortunate circumstance for the free principle that Senator GRAHAM, of Allegheny, was chosen Speaker of the Senate. His past course, his votes, the wishes of his constituents, and his commitments in many ways are the strongest guarantees he could give that in appointing the committees of the Senate he will make sure that the Railroad Committee is for a liberal and genuine Free Law. We have no hesitation in saying that on him the friends of such a law can rely, with no fears of being betrayed. This time, we conclude the undoubted friends of the free principle, not enemies in disguise, will be consulted and have their suggestions listened to, in making up the Senate Committees. To the end that it may be so in the Assembly, also, Free Railroad Republicans should hold themselves aloof and form no entangling alliances. They should do nothing that will embarrass them in the least in their efforts to give the people a genuine Free Railroad Law.

Pennsylvania Emigration to Virginia.

A large number of Lancaster and York county, Pennsylvania, farmers have passed through Maryland within a few weeks past, on their way to the valley of Virginia in the search for farms. The Hagerstown Mail of last week says: "They are all of that substantial, industrious and intelligent class of agriculturists who have made the eastern counties of Pennsylvania a garden spot, and many of them are accompanied by their wives, whose judgment in the selection of a farm they very justly place a high estimate upon. The great proportion have arrived in the cars of the Cumberland Valley Railroad, but on Friday last a large wagon, expressly fitted up for the occasion, and drawn by six splendid grey horses, passed through town with about a score of purchasers and their wives aboard. Virginians will be benefitted by the introduction of this population."

The Presbyterian Banner.

The Presbyterian Banner, published in Pittsburgh by James Allison & Co., appears this week in a new and enlarged form, having been changed to a quarto, and is now one of the largest and cheapest, as well as the oldest papers representing the Presbyterian Church. This is the third enlargement by the present proprietors since it came into their hands, February, 1864, and betokens a prosperity that is richly deserved. The Banner is edited with ability, and discusses forcibly and pointedly the prominent religious topics of the day. Its news of the churches of all denominations is compiled with much care, and its several departments are filled with the latest intelligence. In its improved form, it will be more prosperous than ever.

THE marked decline in Chicago in prices of produce which has taken place during the week has caused uneasiness in some quarters, and as some of the banks are carrying a large amount of produce paper, the general disposition manifested has been to shorten the line of discounts, and to confine loans to parties who are engaged in strictly legitimate business operations. As margins narrowed down the banks promptly called for additional securities, which, in nearly all cases, met with early attention, although a good deal of "shinning around" was required at times.

SHIP owners are not so jubilant as they were a few days ago. The offerings of grain to foreign ports have materially fallen off, and with a steady increase of tonnage freights have declined. However, the chances are all in favor of an early renewal of foreign orders, and a consequent return to higher rates.

SPEAKER COLFAX, in a recent speech, said that Congress would meet at the appointed time, whoever and whatever might oppose, and if it was found that the laws could not be enforced and the policy of Congress carried out, the remedy of impeachment would be resorted to.

MR. WEED, speaking of Mrs. Lincoln, says: "It may not be improper to remark that we have the highest authority for saying that her last speculation was not undertaken with the approval of any near relative or friend."

Narrow Escape of the French Empress from Drowning

At Biarritz, October 3d, happened an accident which involved the life of one poor fellow, but which might have been politically much more disastrous. The Empress and the Prince Imperial had been cruising toward the Spanish coast; but, finding the sea would be too high to land at Biarritz, the royal yacht took shelter behind the breakwater, and the royal party, instead of landing at Socoa, started in the yacht's boat for St. Jean de Luz. The pilot, who had charge of the leading boat, in which were the Empress and the Prince, missed the entrance of the harbor, ran the boat among the rocks, somehow fell overboard himself, and drowned. The royal party was carried through the surf and safely landed. The boats in which were the suite hit the entrance of the harbor, following, as they supposed, the royal gig. Great was their consternation when they found what had befallen the Empress and her boy.

Another account says that the disaster nearly proved fatal to the Empress. Her boat was upset, and the Empress and Prince Imperial were got ashore with great difficulty.

New York Banks.

The New York bank statement is more unfavorable than was expected. The deposits have been drawn down $3,697,000; of this loss, however, $2,284,000 is in specie; while the legal tenders show a loss of $1,766,000. Yet with this depletion of loanable means the loans have been reduced only $279,000. Considering the present straightened condition of the mercantile interest, and the prospect of a large early demand for currency from the South, this condition of the banks is by no means assuring, and causes some uneasiness in banking circles.

POLITICAL.

The Presidential out-look in Indiana is thus stated in a letter dated Lafayette: As for the Presidential nomination, the Indiana Republicans are at this juncture unanimously in favor of General Grant. The friends of Morton and Colfax declare openly that the fall elections have rendered the prospects of their favorites hopeless, and even the extreme radicals under Julian's leadership, who have hitherto been bitterly opposed to Grant, now acquiesce readily in his nomination. Some of the over-zealous friends of our Indiana candidates for the Presidency expected that a Republican defeat in Ohio would improve the chances of the Indiana candidates. They see now that it has hurt their prospects almost as much as those of Messrs. Chase and Wade. The friends of Senator Morton are in hopes that the Indiana delegation at the National Convention will compliment him by casting their votes for him on the first ballot, but I believe the State Convention will instruct them to vote as a unit, first and last, for General Grant.

Major General Lew Wallace is proposed as a Republican candidate for Governor of Indiana, and will prove a formidable competitor for Governor Baker, who seemed to have the inside track hitherto. General Wallace is very popular in the northern and central counties and the G. A. R. will probably support him in preference to Governor Baker.

It is considered a settled fact that Hon. Thos. A. Hendricks, United States Senator, will be the Democratic candidate for Governor of Indiana, to be transplanted to the Senate if his party should carry the Legislature. It is understood that he has consented to be entered for the race.

In the speech of the Governor elect, General Hayes, at Fremont, Ohio, the other day, he said General Grant was already nominated for the next Republican candidate for the Presidency.

FROM CRAWFORD COUNTY.

Serious Accident at a Steam Saw Mill—A Man Loses An Arm.

Special Correspondence of Pittsburgh Commercial.
ADAMSVILLE, Crawford Co., Pa., Oct. 17, 1867.

This morning, while Reuben Sutton, an employee at Miller & Snodgrass's steam (circular) saw mill, one-half mile east of Adamsville station, was oiling the machinery, his left arm came in contact with the balance wheel, while in motion, crushing his arm from elbow to finger points in a terrible manner, and had he not braced himself with his other arm, he would have been dragged in. As soon as the workmen in the mill could shut off the steam, it was done, and the machinery stopped. He was taken out and medical aid immediately called, in the persons of Drs. Prier and Gordon, of Adamsville, two eminent physicians and surgeons, who found it necessary to amputate his arm, which was done above the elbow. He is now doing as well as could be expected. He is a very industrious, hard-working man, and the loss of his arm, even if he fully recovers, will be a heavy blow to him, as he has a family who are dependent on him for support.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

There is now a suit pending in the Superior Court of Cincinnati, instituted by an application for an injunction from the proprietors of the Enquirer to restrain the County Treasurer from collecting the regular tax upon a certain amount of greenbacks, listed among their personal effects. The ground of this application is that the greenbacks being a Government loan, are constitutionally exempt from taxation.

The author of "Le Maudit," who, it would seem, is really an Abbe, continues to send out from his hiding place representations of the Romish Church which goad the ultramontanes to comments like these in the Univers: "There is in him the ape and the serpent. The walk is oblique; the skin is smooth and clammy; the venom circulates, and the natural impudence is displayed in odious grimaces. But the serpent shows his tail too much and the ape cuts too many capers, whence it happens that it bites itself! It is a naive ape!"

The French are terrible experimenters. Dr. Sarazin, inventor of the Chassepot rifle, lately ranged five dead men and shot at them, to discover the deadly mode in which the bullet entered and left the human frame. It was terrific enough to meet with his approbation.

Rev. James Fraser, of England, said in a recent report to both Houses of Parliament, "Taking it for all in all, and as accomplishing the end at which it professes to aim, the English High School at Boston, struck me as the model school of the United States. I wish we had a hundred such in England."

Bennett, Peters & Co., of Chicago, have been held to bail in $10,000, to answer before the United States Court, on a charge of selling highwines at less than the Government tax.

The letter of Commissioner Wells to the London Times of September 2d, in vindication of American finances, has been translated into German at Frankfort, by private parties, bankers, &c., and is being industriously circulated upon the continent of Europe in pamphlet form.

Formerly the reserve cartridges for the French infantry were carried by the artillery attached to each division, six ammunition wagons per battery being devoted to the purpose. Marshal Niel has determined to make the infantry independent of the artillery. An enormous number of light-wheeled ammunition carts have been built for the express purpose of carrying infantry cartridges. Two of them are attached to every battalion, and the military train supplies horses and drivers. These ammunition carts are already supplied to the armies of Paris, Lyons, and to the army of the East concentrated on the frontier.

In Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, Sunday, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher presented to the congregation an appeal to assist a Union lady in Charleston, S. C., who proposes to remove the 211 dead Union soldiers now lying in the potter's field there, to Magnolia Cemetery, and to erect a monument over them. A collection of $1,500 was raised.

An Indiana letter says: Business has greatly improved of late, though prospects of getting a good corn crop proved very delusive. The drouth must have injured the farmers of Indiana to the extent of many millions of dollars. Corn is rapidly rising in our makrets, and in consequence, most of our farmers are selling their lean hogs, as it will not pay to fatten them. The excellent wheat crop and success in other branches of agriculture, however, makes up for the loss in corn, and consequently our business men will have better times this winter than last year.

The Sandusky Register says: "There is quite a rush of inland people to the island just now, to enjoy the unequaled fishing, and the unparalleled grape-eating. The way the Catawbas disappear is a marvel to the grape-growers. It is said that one visitor, from Dayton, ate twenty-three pounds in a single day, while a young married lady from Cleveland disposed of thirty-two bunches at a single lunch.

W. H. Talbott, who was one of the Indiana Sinking Fund Commissioners in 1863-4, and a prominent Democrat, deposited $133,000 of the State School Fund in the banking house of H. J. Lyons & Co., in New York. The bank failed, and a suit was brought again Ballard Ricketts, of Jeffersonville, who was a member of the banking firm, for recovery of the money. The defense was that the deposit was a private one, and had been consumed in losses on gold, in speculations by Talbott and some of his associates. The case has just closed, judgment being given against Ricketts for about $90,000.

At Havre, preparations are making for a naval exhibition, which is to be open to all nations. It is to be a salt water fair, where premiums will be awarded to all articles which affect the interest of those who go down to the sea in ships. It will commence June 1, 1868, and continue five months. Big ships, lapstreaks, anchors and the entire catalogue of such articles will be on exhibition. It is to be under the patronage of the Emperor of France and the Prince Napoleon.

The proposed walk of Edward Payson Weston, from Portland, Me., to Chicago, excites much interest among sporting people. In the terms of agreement, the distance was given as 1,200 miles, the time of starting to be between the 1st and 15th of October. From postal surveys the distance was found to be 1,226 miles. Weston offered to walk the extra twenty-six miles if he could postpone the start till the 29th inst. This, it is said, the backers, Goodwin and Wilcox agreed to, but now Weston's backer is asked to pay the $600 forfeit of the wager of $10,000 a side. Weston will appeal to the editor of the Clipper and to the editor of Wilkes's Spirit, and if they decide against him, he will, if he wins the stakes, pay the above named forfeit. Weston is to start from Portland at noon on the 29th inst.

In concluding a paper on cotton spinning machinery, read before the Institution of Mechanical Engineers at Birmingham, Mr. Platt stated that the number of spindles now employed in the cotton manufacture in Great Britain exceeds 36,000,000. The produce of yarn when in regular work is 64,000,000 miles in a day of ten hours, which gives enough to wind four times around the globe every minute.

They are to have a season of Opera in Chicago with the following artists: Mme. Anna de Lagrange, lyric prima donna; Adelaide Phillips, contralto; Isabella McCulloch and Miss Merrifield, light sopranos; Brignoli and Massimiliani, tenors; Randolfi and Marra, baritones; Susini and Coletti, bassos; Sarti, buffo, and Francisco Rosa, conductor. The season will commence on the 28th inst. with Trovatore.

PERSONAL.

—A statement is going the rounds of the press that Captain Robt. T. Lincoln, son of the late President Lincoln, had recently been admitted to the Chicago bar. The fact is, that young Lincoln was admitted to the bar more than a year since, and is now master of a handsome practice. He was, about two weeks since, admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, a position rarely reached by one so young, he being scarcely twenty-five. In this connection it may not be improper to say, in order to correct many impressions in regard to Captain Lincoln, that he is one of the most promising young men in the West. He is an intelligent, industrious, quiet, unassuming, courteous gentleman, and enjoys in an eminent degree the personal esteem of the people of Chicago. Resembling his honored father in the modesty of his demeanor, simplicity of his character, generosity of his heart and strict integrity of his principles, it is impossible not to respect and honor him. The conduct of his mother is as deep a mystery to him as to all of her friends, and the only theory he can suggest in her defense is that she is insane.

—Pawnbroker Brady, with commendable taste, has decided that the subscriptions in aid of Mrs. Lincoln shall not be copied for publication. He says that proceeding is calculated only to gratify an idle curiosity and to wound Mrs. Lincoln's feelings. Persons who desire to make contributions are invited into a little back room, where they may lay down their offerings and sign their names without being subjected either to public gaze or the impertinence of the press gang. We hear, however, of one ingenious reporter acting the part of a sympathizing contributor to the extent of a few cents, merely to get a look at the book "for business purposes."

—Madamoiselle Willson, the celebrated cantatrice, who receives now a salary of one hundred thousand francs, and is the great rival of Adelina Patti, was, five years ago, a little Swedish peasant girl, wearing a coarse, homespun dress and wooden shoes. Her parents employed her to carry milk from their small dairy farm to the houses of the neighbors. One day, in the winter time, her merry warblings, her beautiful voice, and her intelligent face attracted the attention of a distinguished musician from Stockholm, who prevailed on her parents to send her to the conservatory at Stockholm, where her teacher discovered at once her surpassing talents, and stated that another Jenny Lind had been found.

—The largest and most brilliant wedding ever given in Madison county, Ohio, came off on the evening of the 15th, at the residence of Mr. James Dun, six miles north of London, on the Urbana pike. Mr. George Douglass, of New York City, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock with Miss Susie, eldest daughter of James Dun. About two hundred guests were present, including Commodore Walke, of the United States Navy, Judge Thurman and Col. Watson, of Columbus; Colonel Walke, Mayor of Circleville; R. G. Dun, financial agent, New York, and large numbers of family friends from that city, St. Louis, Chillicothe, and other Southern and Western cities. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Haight, in the Episcopal service. The bride was arrayed in a white satin dress, and looked decidedly beautiful.

—The Toledo Blade asserts, on what it considers good authority, that Hon. Ben. F. Wade has no idea of retiring from public life. His friends next fall will present him as a candidate for the House of Representatives from the Nineteenth (Garfield's) Congressional District.

—Mary Harris, who killed Borroughs, the department clerk in the Treasury Department at Washington, on the 30th of January, 1865, is under treatment for insanity at the Government Insane Asylum at Washington. She is said to still exhibit unquestionable evidences of insanity.

—It was Marshall O. Roberts, of New York, who presented Mrs. Lincoln $10,000 in cash, his individual donation, and it is known that other considerable sums were given her—all immediately following the death of Mr. Lincoln.

Across the Sierra Nevadas.

THE

Central Pacific Railroad,

THE WESTERN HALF OF THE

Great National Trunk Line
Across the Continent,

Being constructed with the AID AND SUPERVISION OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, is destined to be one of the most important lines of communication in the world, as it is the sole link between the Pacific Coast and the Great Interior Basin, over which the immense Overland travel must pass, and the Principal Portion of the Main Stem Line between the Two Oceans.

Its line extends from Sacramento, on the tidal waters of the Pacific, eastward across the richest and most populous parts of California, Nevada and Utah, contiguous to all the great Mining Regions of the Far West, and will meet and connect with the roads now building east of the Rocky Mountains. About 100 miles are now built, equipped and in running operation to the summit of the Sierra Nevada. Within a few days 35 miles, now graded, will be added, and the track carried entirely across the mountains to a point in the Great Salt Lake Valley, whence further progress will be easy and rapid. Iron, materials and equipment are ready at hand for 300 miles of road, and 10,000 men are employed in the construction.

The local business upon the completed portion surpasses all previous estimate. The figures for the quarter ending August 31, are as follows in GOLD:

Gross Earnings.	Operating Expenses.	Net Earnings.
$487,579 64	$86,548 17	$401,031 47

Or at the rate of two millions per annum, of which more than three-fourths are net profit, on less than 100 miles worked. This is upon the actual, legitimate traffic of the road, with its terminus in the mountains, and with only the normal ratio of government transportation, and the local business of the mountains, and the further extension of the road.

The Company's interest liabilities during the same period were less than $125,000.

All to this an ever-expanding through traffic and the proportions of the future business become immense.

The Company are authorized to continue their line eastward until it shall meet and connect with the roads now building east of the Rocky Mountain ranges. Assuming that they shall build and control half the entire distance between San Francisco and the Missouri River, as now seems probable, the United States will have invested in the completion of 865 miles $28,592,000, or at the average rate of $35,000 per mile—not including a grant of 12,800 acres of the Public Lands. By becoming a joint investor in the magnificent enterprise, and by waiving its first lien in favor of the First Mortgage Bondholders, the General Government, in effect, invites the co-operation of private capitalists, and has carefully guarded their interests against all ordinary contingencies.

The Company offer for sale, through us, their

First Mortgage Thirty Year Six Per Cent. Coupon Bonds,

Principal and Interest payable in Gold Coin, in New York city. They are in sums of $1,000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, and are selling for the present at 95 per cent. and accrued interest from July 1st added, in currency, at which rate they yield nearly Nine per Cent. upon the Investment.

These Bonds, authorized by Act of Congress, are issued only as the work progresses, and to the same amount only as the Bonds granted by the Government, and represent, in all cases, the first lien upon a completed, equipped and productive railroad, in which have been invested Government subsidies, stock subscriptions, donations, surplus earnings, etc., and which is worth more than three times the amount of First Mortgage Bonds which can be issued upon it.

The Central Pacific First Mortgage Bonds have all the assurances, sanctions and guarantees of the Pacific Railroad Act of Congress, and have in addition several noticeable advantages over all other classes of railroad bonds.

First—They are the superior claim upon altogether the most vital and valuable portion of the through line.

Second—Beside the fullest benefit of the Government subsidy (which is a subordinate lien), the road receives the benefit of large donations from California.

Third—Fully half the whole cost of grading 800 miles eastward of San Francisco is concentrated upon the 150 miles now about completed.

Fourth—A local business already yielding threefold the annual interest liabilities, with advantageous rates payable in coin.

Fifth—The principal as well as the interest of its Bonds being payable in coin, upon a legally binding agreement.

Having carefully investigated the resources, and prospects of the road, and the management of the Company's affairs, we cordially recommend these Bonds to Trustees, Executors, Institutions, and others, as an eminently sound, reliable and remunerative form of permanent investment.

OCTOBER.

I.—MORNING.

The wasp feeds in the hollow peach;
  The thistle-down is blowing, blowing;
The fern is dead, and the morning red
  In the eastern cloud is glowing.
The holly oak-staff is broken in two,
  And the weed-fires are all flaring;
Time is shaking the sluggish sands,
  And the year, the year is wearing.

II.—EVENING.

The clouds bank up in sullen heaps,
  And the mist is drifting, drifting;
In slanting lines, through the coppery pines,
  The peevish rain is sifting.
In the west, upon a golden shore,
  Night's blackest waves are breaking;
And in the rain and wind, the leaves
  With palsied fear are shaking.

STEPHEN C. FOSTER.

Negro Minstrelsy—Its Origin—"Daddy" Rice—Foster's Melodies.

In the November number of the Atlantic Monthly there is an agreeable sketch by our talented townsman, R. P. Nevin, Esq., entitled "Stephen C. Foster and Negro Minstrelsy." The writer commences by referring to the origin of negro delineations on the stage, which were first introduced to the public thirty years ago at the old frame theater on Fifth street, Pittsburgh, the site of the present unoccupied theater, by the once popular T. D. Rice. Mr. Nevin relates how Rice induced a negro porter, with immense mouth, employed at Griffith's Hotel, Wood street, to accompany him to the theater on the night he was to make his first venture in negro delineation; how he prevailed on "Cuff" to disrobe, and invested himself in the cast-off apparel; how he waddled upon the stage, and sung "Jim Crow," and created the wildest enthusiasm, receiving encore upon encore; how Cuff, who was in a rather nude state behind the flats, became excited on hearing tha a steamer was approaching the wharf, and hurriedly whispered to Rice, "must have my close, Massa Griffif wants me—steamboat's comin," and how Rice, intoxicated with success, was deaf to all but the uproarious applause in front of him, until "Cuff," who could stand his suspense no longer, rushed upon the stage in his undress, and seized Mr. Rice and excitedly demanded, "nigga's hat, nigga's coat, nigga's shoes, nigga's things." This is briefly the authentic account of the first introduction of negro minstralsy as a distinct art. Next day, the writer says, Jim Crow, in one style of delivery or another, was on everybody's tongue—"Clerks hummed it serving customers at shop counters, artisans thundered it at their toils to the time-beat of sledge and of tilt-hammer, boys whistled it on the streets, ladies warbled it in parlors, and house-maids repeated it to the clink of crockery in the kitchen." Mr. W. C. Peters, afterwards of Cincinnati, was at that time a music-dealer on Market street, Pittsburgh, and, at Rice's request, he published Jim Crow, with a piano-forte accompaniment, the work being executed by John Newton on stone, and was the first specimen of lithography ever produced in Pittsburgh. Jim Crow was repeated nightly at the theater, until the close of the season, and when that was ended, Beale's Long Room, corner Third and Market, was engaged for rehearsals exclusively in the Ethiopian line. Here "Clar de Kitchen," "Lucy Long," "Sich a Gittin up Stairs," and so on, were produced.

Mr. Nevin then refers to the organization of minstrel bands, one of the earliest of which was that under the leadership of Nelson Kneass, and known as the "Sable Harmonists." This company disbanded in this city in 1845, when Mr. Joseph Murphy, a principal member, now business manager of the Arch street theater, Philadelphia, determined to resume the business he laid aside on going upon the stage.

A certain Mr. Andrews, dealer in confections, cakes and ices, being stirred by a spirit of enterprise, rented, in the year 1845, a second floor hall on Wood street, Pittsburgh, supplied it with seats and small tables, advertised largely, employed cheap attractions—living statues, songs, dances, etc., erected a stage, hired a piano, and upon the dissolution of his band, engaged the services of Nelson Kneass as musician and manager. Admittance was free, the ten-cent ticket required at the door being received at its cost value within, towards the payment of whatever might be called for at the tables. To keep alive the interests of the enterprise, premiums were offered, from time to time, of a bracelet for the best conundrum, a ring with a ruby setting for the best comic song, and a golden chain for the best sentimental song. The most and perhaps only really valuable reward—a genuine and very pretty silver cup, exhibited night after night, beforehand—was promised to the author of the best original song, to be presented before a certain date, and to be decided upon by a committee designated for the purpose by the audience at that time.

Quite a large array of competitors entered the list; but the contest would be hardly worthy of mention, save it was the occasion of the first appearance of him who was to prove the reformer of his art, and to a sketch of whose career the foregoing is chiefly preliminary.

Stephen Collins Foster was born in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, on the 4th of July, 1826. He was the youngest child of his father, Wm. B. Foster—originally a merchant of Pittsburgh, and afterwards Mayor of his native city, member of the State Legislature, and a Federal officer under President Buchanan, with whom he was closely connected by marriage. The evidences of a musical capacity of no common order were apparent in Stephen at an early period. Going into a shop one day, when about seven years old, he picked up a flageolet, the first he had ever seen, and comprehending, after an experiment or two, the order of the scale on the instrument, was able in a few minutes, uninstructed, to play any of the simple tunes within the octave with which he was acquainted. A Thespian society, composed of boys in their teens, was organized in Allegheny, into which Stephen, although but in his ninth year, was admitted, and of which he became the leading attraction.

At thirteen years of age, he made his first attempt at composition, producing for a public occasion at the seminary in Athens, Ohio, where he was a student at the time, the "Tioga Waltz," which, although quite pretty affair, he never thought worthy of preservation. In the same year, shortly afterwards, he composed music to the song, commencing, "Sadly to mine heart appealing," now embraced in the list of his publications, but not brought out until many years later.

Stephen was a boy of delicate constitution, not addicted to the active sports or any of the more vigorous habits of boys of his age. His only companions were a few intimate friends, and, thus secluded, his character naturally took a sensitive, meditative cast, and his growing direlish for severer tasks was confirmed. As has been intimated, he entered as a pupil at Athens; but as the course of instruction in that institution was not in harmony with his tastes, he soon withdrew, applying himself afterwards to the study of the French and German languages (a ready fluency in both of which he finally acquired,) and especially to the art dearer than all other studies. A recluse, owning and soliciting no guidance but that of his text book, in the quiet of the woods, or if that were inaccessible, the retirement of his chamber, he devoted himself to this art.

At the age of sixteen he composed and published the song, "Open thy Lattice, Love," which was admired, but did not meet with extraordinary success. In the year following he went to Cincinnati, entering the counting room of his brother, and discharged the duties of his place with faithfulness and ability. His spare hours were still devoted, however, to his favorite pursuit, although his productions were chiefly preserved in manuscript, and kept for the private entertainment of his friends. He continued with his brother nearly three years.

At the time Mr. Andrews, of Pittsburgh, offered a silver cup for the best original negro song, Mr. Morrison Foster sent to his brother Stephen, a copy of the advertisement announcing the fact, urging him to become a competitor for the prize. These saloon entertainments occupied a neutral ground, upon which eschewers of theatrical delights could meet with the abetters of play-house amusements,—a consideration of ruling importance in Pittsburgh, where so many of the sterling population carry with them to this day, by legitimate inheritance, the staunch old Cameronian fidelity to Presbyterian creed and practice. Morrison, believing that these concerts would afford an excellent opportunity for the genius of his brother to appeal to the public, persisted in urging him to compete for the prize, until Stephen, who at first expressed his dislike to appear under such circumstances, finally yielded, and in due time forwarded a melody entitled, "Way down South, whar de Corn Grows." The eventful night came; the various pieces in competition were rendered to the audience by Nelson Kneass to his own accompaniment on the piano. The audience expressed by their applause a decided preference for Stephen's melody; but the Committee appointed to sit in judgment decided in favor of some one else, himself and his song never heard of afterwards, and the author of "Way down South" forfeited the cup. But Mr. Kneass appreciated the merit of the composition, and promptly, next morning, made application at the proper office for a copy-right in his own name as author, when Mr. Morrison Foster, happening in at the moment, interposed, and frustrated the discreditable intention.

This experiment of Foster's, if it fell short of the expectation of his friends, served, notwithstanding, a profitable purpose, for it led him to a critical investigation of the school of music to which it belonged. This school had been—was yet—unquestionably popular. To what, then, was it indebted for its captivating points? It was to its truth to Nature in her simplest and most childlike mood.

Settled as to theory, Foster applied himself to the task of its exemplification. Two attempts were made while he yet remained in Cincinnati, the pencil drafts of which, however, were laid aside for the time being in his portfolio. His shrinking nature held timidly back at the thought of a venture before the public; and so the case stood until he reappeared in Pittsburgh.

Referring to the political singing clubs of 1844, and the continuance in existence of some after the campaign ended, the sketch continues:

Among other organizations that thus lingered on was one, composed of half a dozen young men, since grown into graver habits, with Foster—home again, and linked once more in the circle of his intimates—at its head. The negro airs were still the favorites; but the collection, and frequent repetition, at length began to grow stale. One night, at a revival measure for the club, and as an opportunity for himself, Foster hinted that, with their permission, he would offer for trial an effort of his own. Accordingly he set to work; and at their next meeting laid before them a song entitled, "Louisiana Belle." The piece elicited unanimous applause. Its success in the club room opened to it a wider field, each member acting as an agent of dissemination outside, so that in the course of a few nights the song was sung in almost every parlor in Pittsburgh. Foster then brought to light his portfolio specimens, since universally known as "Uncle Ned," and "O Susanna!" The favor with which these latter were received surpassed even that rewarding the "Louisiana Belle." Although limited to the one slow process of communication,—from mouth to ear,—their fame spread far and wide, until from the drawing rooms of Cincinnati they were introduced into its concert halls, and there became known to Mr. W. C. Peters, who at once addressed letters requesting copies for publication. These were cheerfully furnished by the author. He did not look for remuneration. For "Uncle Ned," which first appeared (in 1847), he received none; "O Susanna!" soon followed, and "imagine my delight," he writes, "in receiving one hundred dollars in cash! Though this song was not successful," he continues, "yet the two fifty dollar bills I received for it had the effect of starting me on my present vocation of song writer." In pursuance of this decision, he entered into arrangements with new publishers, chiefly with Firth, Pond & Co., of New York, set himself to work, and began to pour out his productions with astonishing rapidity.

Out of the list, embracing about one hundred and fifty of his songs, the most flatteringly received among his negro melodies were those already enumerated, followed by "Nelly was a Lady," in 1849; "My Old Kentucky Home," and "Camptown Races," in 1850; "Old Folks at Home," in 1851; "Massa's in the Cold Ground," in 1852; "O, Boys Carry Me 'Long," in 1853; "Hard Times Come Again no More," in 1854; "Way Down South," and "O, Lemuel," in 1858; "Old Black Joe," in 1860; and (noticeable only as his last in his line) "Don't bet your Money on the Shanghai," in 1861.

In all these compositions Foster adheres scrupulously to his theory adopted at the outset. His verses are distinguished by a naivete characteristic and appropriate, but consistent at the same time with common sense. Enough of the negro dialect is retained to preserve distinction, but not to offend. The sentiment is given in plain phrase and under homely illustration; but it is a sentiment nevertheless. The melodies are of twin birth literally with the verses, for Foster thought in tune as he traced in rhyme, and traced in rhyme as he thought in tune. Of easy modulation, severely simple in their structure, his airs have yet the graceful proportions, animated with the fervor, unostentatious, but all-subduing, of certain of the old hymns (not the chorals) derived from our fathers of a hundred years ago.

That he had struck upon the true way to the common heart, the success attending his efforts surely demonstrate. His songs had an unparalleled circulation. The commission accruing to the author on the sales of "Old Folks" alone amounted to fifteen thousand dollars. For permission to have his name printed on its title-page, as an advertising scheme, Mr. Christy paid five hundred dollars. Applications were unceasing from the various publishers of the country for some share, at least, of his patronage, and upon terms that might have seduced almost any any one else; but the publishers with whom he originally engaged had won his esteem, and Foster adhered to them faithfully. Artists of the highest distinction favored him with their friendship; and Herz, Sivori, Ole Bull, Thalberg, were alike ready to approve his genius, and to testify that approval in the choice of his melodies as themes about which to weave their witcheries of embellishment. Complimentary letters from men of literary note poured in upon him; among others, one full of generous encouragement from Washington Irving, dearly prized and carefully treasured to the day of Foster's death. Similar missives reached him from across the seas—from strangers and from travelers in lands far remote; and he learned that, while "O Susanna!" was the familiar song of the cottager of the Clyde, "Uncle Ned" was known to the dweller in tents among the Pyramids.

Of his sentimental songs, "Ah, may the Red Rose live alway!" "Maggie by my side," "Jennie with the Light Brown Hair," "Willie, we have missed you," "I see her still in my Dreams" "Wilt thou be gone, Love" (a duett, the words adapted from a well known scene in Romeo and Juliet), and "Come where my Love Lies Dreaming" (quartet), are among the leading favorites. "I see her still in my Dreams" appeared in 1861, shortly after the death of his mother, and is a tribute to the memory of her to whom he was devotedly attached. The verses to most of these airs—to all the successful ones—were of his own composition. Indeed, he could seldom satisfy himself in his "settings" of the stanzas of others. If the metrical and symmetrical features of the lines in hand chanced to disagree with his conception of the motion and proportion befitting in a musical interpretation; if the sentiment were one that failed, whether from lack of appreciation or sympathy on his part, to command absolute approval; or if the terms employed were not of a precise thread and tension—if they were wanting, however minutely, in vibratory qualities—of commensurate extent would be the failure attending the translation.

The last three years of his life Mr. Foster passed in New York. During all that time, his efforts, with perhaps one exception, were limited to the production of songs of a pensive character. The loss of his mother seems to have left an ineffaceable impression of melancholy upon his mind, and inspired such songs as "I Dream of my Mother," "I'll be Home To-morrow," "Leave Me with my Mother," and "Bury me in the Morning." He died, after a brief illness, on the 13th of January, 1864. His remains reached Pittsburgh on the 20th, and were conveyed to Trinity Church, where on the day following, in the presence of a large assembly, appropriate and impressive ceremonies took place, and choral services being sustained by a company of his former friends and associates. His body was then carried to the Allegheny Cemetery, and to the music of "Old Folks at Home," finally committed to the grave.

CITY MATTERS.

ALLEGED HOMICIDE AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

Death of James A. Monahan.

Lawrence Purcell Arrested for Murder.

Apparent Conflict in the Testimony.

Curious Feature of the Case.

On Monday night, about ten o'clock, an affray occurred at the Mansion House, Liberty street, between James A. Monahan and Lawrence Purcell, both boarders at the hotel, which resulted in the death of the former on Tuesday morning between ten and eleven o'clock. The difficulty occurred in the bar room; the only persons present at the time, aside from the parties named, being Charles Zeissler, the proprietor, and Jacob Lehman, the bar tender. The parties to the encounter, as appears from the testimony, merely exchanged blows—Monahan striking Purcell in the face, and the latter inflicting a similar blow. Purcell was not much injured, but the wound on the cheek bled a little. Monahan fell under the effects of his blow, and as he was very drunk at the time, he fell heavily upon the floor—the back of the head making a sharp sound as it came in contact with the floor. The bar tender, and the proprietor of the house, assisted by Mr. Clark, late proprietor, carried Monahan up to his room and put him in bed. Purcell had previously been seized by the bar-keeper, and shoved out of the bar room into the hall. It was not believed by any one that Monahan had been seriously injured, and the difficulty was kept quiet, under the impression that it would be amicably settled when Monahan became sober.

DEATH OF MONAHAN.

When the injured man had been placed in bed in his room a small boy was ordered to attend him, wash his face, and keep cool applications on his lip and cheek. This boy continued in the room for a time, but the patient, who had not spoken after the blow and fall, began to recover his consciousness, and endeavored to get out of bed. He became violent, and slapped the boy in the face, which caused him to complain to the watchman, Mr. Berry, who ordered the boy to bed. Mr. Berry and Mr. Zeissler visited Monahan three times during the night, and found him apparently in a drunken sleep, not exhibiting any unusual symptoms. In the morning, however, it was discovered that the man was in a critical condition, and Dr. Hamilton was sent for. He saw the patient at nine o'clock, and at once expressed fears that the injuries were fatal. He recommended that Dr. Dickson be called to consult with him, which was done. Dr. Dickson coincided with Dr. Hamilton, and bled the patient, while Dr. Hamilton summoned a cupper and leecher. It was soon ascertained that the man was suffering from compression of the brain, and that he could not recover. He sank rapidly and died between ten and eleven o'clock.

THE ARREST OF PURCELL

Some time before the death of Monahan, information of the difficulty was conveyed to the Mayor' office, and an officer was sent to arrest Purcell. He was found at the Mansion House, and at once accompanied the officer to the Mayor's office. After the death of Monahan, he was locked up in one of the cells to await the result of the Coroner's investigation. It is proper to state in this connection that Purcell had gone to the Mayor's office at an early hour in the day, to make information against Monahan for assault and battery, he being the assaulting party on the previous night. Not finding the Mayor, he went to a magistrate's office and made complaint there, and a warrant for Monahan would have been issued had not his death been soon after announced.

THE ORIGIN OF THE DIFFICULTY.

Purcell and Monahan had previously been on very friendly terms, but had lately quarrelled in consequence of Monahan having accused Purcell of living in improper intimacy with his niece, Annie Purcell. He also intimated that Purcell had entered his room and stolen some of his shirts. They had had a number of rencounters, and had each threatened to kill the other. Monahan had lately brought suit against Purcell for threatening to take his life, but on Monday had withdrawn the charge and paid the costs. Monahan had been drinking freely, and as soon as he met Purcell in the evening, in the bar room, he began to abuse him—calling him vile names, and stigmatizing his niece as a bad woman. The proprietor of the house was present, and did all in his power to prevent a conflict. He stood between them while the opprobrious epithets were being applied by the deceased, and as Purcell made no reply, and Monahan seemed to become quiet, he stepped out from between them and the blows immediately followed. Monahan had encountered Annie Purcell in the hall the same evening, and accused her of improprieties with her uncle. What the relationship is between Purcell and his niece we do not know, nor is it certain that she is his niece. She is in the habit of calling him uncle, and he has been providing for her at the hotel for a long time. What induced Monahan to pursue these parties with so much bitterness cannot be accounted for, unless it be attributed to drunkenness, as he was peacably disposed towards them when sober.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

Coroner Clawson was notified of the death of Monahan, and proceeded to hold an inquest. The following testimony was elicited:

TESTIMONY OF EYE-WITNESSES.

Charles Ziessler, sworn—Am proprietor of the Mansion House; was with Lawrence Purcell last evening; between ten and eleven o'clock Mr. Monahan came home and was drunk; I got him to go up to his room; went out and came back, when I heard Monahan make a noise; I took him out on the street and asked him to please to keep still; he sat down on a chair in front of the hotel, and was quiet; I then went into the front bar and found Mr. Purcell at the counter; he asked me to take a drink with him, and just at that time Monahan came in; I was standing between Purcell and Monahan, Purcell being at my right side; Monahan commenced to talk very bad to Purcell; he said Mr. Purcell was guilty of improper intimacy with his niece; Mr. Purcell gave him no answer; I stepped back two or three steps, and just at this moment Monahan struck Purcell in the face, over the eyes, knocking his hat off, Purcell then turned around and struck Monahan in the face, who fell very heavily with the back of the head on the floor. Purcell struck him but the one blow, and no weapon was used by either party. Three of us carried him up to his room and put him in his bed. I got a boy to wash his face and attend to him after he was p'aced in bed.

Jacob Lehman, sworn—Live at Mount Joy, Lancaster county; am bar-tender at the Mansion House; saw the difficulty between Purcell and Monahan; it was about ten o'clock; Mr. Monahan came to the bar, and he and I were talking; he made remarks to me about Purcell; said such persons as Purcell and his niece ought not to be allowed in a respectable boarding hou e; I wanted him to be quiet and go to bed; I then wa ked to the front door and asked him to come; he came to the Liberty street door and said he would go to bed; I then returned to the bar; Purcell then came in, met Mr. Zeissler at the bar, and asked him to take a drink; Monahan came in, walked around Purcell, and made remarks about Purcell; said he did not like him; that he did not pay his board bill, and acted improperly with his niece. Purcell made no reply to these remarks. The proprietor begged Mr. Monahan to keep quiet, and the talking ceased. Thinking all was quiet, Zeissler stepped out from between them, when Monahan a vanced and struck Purcell over the eye, drawing blood. Purcell then returned the blow, striking Monahan below the eye and knocking him down. He fell on his back, the head striking hard on the floor. The sound of the concussion was like the shot of a gun. Purcell struck but one blow, and made no attempt to inflict a second. He had no weapon, neither had Monahan. The deceased was then carried up stairs. He did not speak after the fall.

MONAHAN IN HIS ROOM.

Wm. Seibert, sworn—Last night Mr. Zeissler sent me into Monahan's room to wash his face and keep cold water on it; wiped his face a couple of times; then he would n t let me; Mr Clark and I tried to keep him in bed, but he wanted to get up; he spoke some, and called me Jimmy, but I could not understand the rest; he lifted up his hand and hit me along side the cheek; I then went out of the room with the water, and said I would not wash him any more; Mr. Berry came up and sent me to bed then

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST PURCELL.

John G. Berry, sworn—Am watchman in the house; for several weeks Monahan and Purcell have been "spatting;" on Friday night Monahan got his washing home by a colored man; he alleged next morning that some person had stolen his shirt collars; he said he knew the Irish thing that did it, and there was no brick wall between them, and that his niece was nothing but a wanton; I told him such talk was not allowed in the house; he said he would send him over the river; he had sued Purcell for threatening his life, but the case was settled yesterday by Monahan withdrawing the suit; last night Monahan commenced the same talk again, and he and Mr. Purcell's niece (Annie Purcell) commenced quarrelling in the hall, he having called her bad names. Mr. Zeissler interfered and sent her to her room. I was called away then, and heard nothing more till Monahan was knocked down in the bar room Mr. Zeissler and I visited him two or three times in his rooms and found him sleeping. We did not think he was much injured.

Dr. John Dickson, sworn—saw the patient about nine o'clock this morning; found him comatose and stertorous; examined him carefully, and Dr. Hamilton and I came to the conclusion that he was suffering from concussion of the brain; and the evidence of concussion was, that the pupil of the eye was not dilated; found his pulse full, and other evidence of concussion, and not compression; examined his external injuries, and in the back of his head found some fragments of a paragus which he had thrown up; found him getting tremulous, and it was suggested by Dr. Hamilton that he ought to be bled, to guard against convulsion which would have been fatal; Dr. Hamilton said he would leech and cup him, and we went for the cupper and leecher, while I bled him; he bled him to the extent of about a pint; that bled him proved that he had compression, once the pupil expanded; then thought he would not survive; examined the external contusion and found contusions below the nostrils, on the lip, and on the cheek bone; found that the contusion on the check and lip might have been done with the knuckles of the hand; another abrasion, above the left eye, indicated that it had been the result of a blow from a stick; it seem'd to have been a rough stick that scratched as it struck; this was the blow that disorganized the brain; if this blow had been struck while the man was on the floor the skull would have been broken and not the brain; immediately under the cranium, under that blow, was a clot or coagulum; behind that the brain tissue was broken down to the ventricle and the ventricle full of fluid blood.

Dr. W. R. Hamilton, sworn—Visited the deceased a little before nine o'clock this morning; found him comatose, with stertorous breathing; considered him in a very dangerous condition, and had Dr. Dickson to see him with me; I assisted Dr. Dickson in the post mortem, and concur with him in his statement. In addition, I would state that I found a contusion on the back of the head, which might have resulted from a fall. There was no fracture of the skull, and this contusion had nothing to do with the man's death. I have some doubt as to the man's fist having inflicted the contusion on the lip and check, at one blow.

THE JURY PUZZLED.

When the testimony of the physicians was heard, it was found difficult for the jury to reconcile the positive with the circumstantial evidence. The proprietor and bar-keeper, who were eye-witnesses of the affray, testified positively that but one blow was inflicted on Monahan; that it was upon the left cheek, and that no weapon was used. It was believed that the fall had caused death, until the testimony of the physicians was heard. Dr. Dickson is positive that the blow on the cheek could not have caused death, and just as positive that the fall on the floor did not cause death. The force that ruptured the brain tissue, in his judgment, was applied on the forehead, over the left eye, where the abrasion on the scalp had the appearance of having been made by a stick. He showed the jury the brain of the deceased, the back part of which was entirely free from extravasation or injury of any kind. The skull had not been fractured, while the injury to the scalp, caused by the fall backwards on the floor, was not very severe. There was coagulum under the scalp at the point of contusion, but the brain at that point was perfectly free from clot. On the other hand, there was a large amount of coagulated blood pressing on the brain immediately under and around the abrasion on the forehead, and the physicians were both strongly convinced that the fatal force was applied at this point. The jury, after deliberating some time, concluded to adjourn over until seven o'clock this evening, at the Mayor's office, for the purpose of ascertaining, in the meantime, whether the deceased could have been injured before or after his encounter with Purcell. One of the jurors asked Dr. Hamilton whether a man, in Monahan's drunken and excited condition, might not have received the fatal blow before he had the difficulty with Purcell. The Doctor replied that it was possible, and cited the case of a man who had walked about for two or three hours, and conversed, after having sustained a fatal injury to the brain. In this view of the case it was deemed best to adjourn over for a day, to enable the Coroner to ascertain something as to how and where Monahan had been spending the evening.

WHAT MR. PURCELL SAYS.

Our reporter visited Mr. Purcell in the lock-up during the afternoon, and he conversed very freely with regard to the unfortunate affair. He stated that he had been abused beyond measure by Monahan, and did not resent him until he added a blow to his insults, when he struck in self-defense, and had no thought of inflicting serious injury. When he saw Monahan down he did not attempt to follow up the blow, and imagined that he fell because he was drunk, rather than from the force of the blow. He had no malice toward the man, and deeply regretted his death. He does not believe that the blow killed him, and thinks that he must have been injured by falling out of bed. He states that his room is close to Monahan's, and in the night he heard a heavy thump on the floor, as though a person had fallen out of bed.

A PLAUSIBLE THEORY.

There is something plausible in the theory that Monahan may have been injured by a fall from his bed, but there is not likely to be any definite proof on the subject. It is worth while, however, to consider the matter. His bed stood in such position that, if he should happen to fall out, he would most likely fall upon the left side. He was so drunk and excited that he may have attempted to get out, and have fallen, or may have unconsciously rolled out in his sleep. If his head struck the floor first, the injury to the forehead described by Dr. Dickson might have resulted, as he was a very heavy man. The carpet might produce those scratches on the scalp which gave the appearance of having been made by a rough stick. If he did fall out, however, he must have got in again himself, as there is no evidence that he was helped in. He had evidently been awake in the night, as the doctor found that he had vomited over the bed clothing. The irreconcilable nature of the testimony necessitates theory of some kind, and we give the above for what it is worth. The feature of the case is not only curious and interesting, but very important to the prisoner.

MR. PURCELL

Is a well-known business man, having been engaged in the wholesale and retail liquor business on Liberty street, opposite the mouth of Smithfield, for a number of years. He recently sold his lease of the store to Messrs. John Roth & Son for a handsome bonus, and had retired from business. He is about forty-five or fifty years of age, a native of Ireland, and is said to be possessed of considerable means. He has always borne the reputation of a peaceable citizen.

THE DECEASED.

James Monahan, the deceased, was a native of Ireland, and emigrated to this country about twenty years since. Being industrious and of a frugal disposition, he soon amassed a considerable sum of money, with which he purchased Mr. Robert S. Cassett's cotton mill, on Rebecca street, Allegheny. About this time he endorsed heavily for one of our prominent business men, who failed, and the creditors seized upon the mill, and sold it, but a sufficient amount was not realized to pay the obligation. He then returned to Ireland, where he spent a number of years, during which time he took several heavy contracts on railroads, and also built a large dock in the city of Liverpool. Eight or ten years since he revisited this country and identified himself with a number of public improvements in this vicinity, among others the excavation for the basin of the Birmingham Water Works, paving of East Liberty Cattle Yards, and the grading of a portion of the Allegheny city wharf. He was also an applicant for the contract for repaving the Monongahela wharf. Deceased was about forty-six years of age, unmarried, and was much esteemed by his acquaintances. He has a sister residing in Philadelphia, and a sister-in-law in the Seventh ward, of this city. His aged mother lives in Ireland, and it was his intention to visit her in a few months, having secured a comfortable competence. He was of a genial and generous disposition, but was disposed to be quarrelsome while intoxicated. He was well known throughout the community, and his melancholy death will be regretted by those who knew him best.

SPECIAL TRAINS.—A petition is being circulated and extensively signed among the citizens of Manchester, asking the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company to run a special train, morning and evening, to and from Sedgwick street to the Federal Street Depot, for the benefit of the residents of that portion of Allegheny City. It is stated that over one hundred persons would avail themselves of this privilege daily, if the scheme was started.

HELD FOR TRIAL.—Henry Bell, a young colored lad, was committed to jail yesterday, by Deputy Mayor Owston, in default of bail, to answer a charge of stealing a coat and vest from an acquaintance, which he disposed of to a tailor on Wylie street.

Police Intelligence.

MONDAY, October 21.

[Before Mayor Morrison, of Allegheny.]

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

James Davidson, who was arrested on a charge of robbing the till of the Globe Exchange, in the Allegheny Diamond, on Thursday evening last, was committed to jail on Saturday for trial, in default of three hundred dollars bail, on information for larceny having been lodged against him by Chief of Police Long.

[Before Alderman McMasters.]

ROBBERY AT CROOKED RUN.

E. B. Loughran instituted suit yesterday before this Alderman against two men named Joseph A. Kennedy and Wm. A. Fayer, for larceny. The prosecutor keeps a boarding house at Crooked Run Station, on the Connellsville Railroad, in Versailles township, and the defendants, who were employed as laborers on the railroad, boarded there. A day or two ago Kennedy and Sayer left the house, and shortly afterwards it was discovered that some articles belonging to Mr. Loughran and Mr. S. B. Kirk, consisting of an overcoat, revolver, razor, brush and box, were missing. It being supposed that the defendants were the thieves, an information was lodged against them by Mr. Loughran, as stated. Kennedy was arrested yesterday and acknowledged to having committed the theft, and exculpated Sayer from all connection with it. He was accordingly committed to jail for trial, in default of bail.

WIFE VS. HUSBAND.

Mrs. Nancy Hamilton lodged complaint against her husband, James Hamilton, for surety of the peace. In her information, Mrs. Hamilton alleges that her husband had been in the habit of beating her so badly that she was compelled to seek refuge with her mother in Lawrenceville. Since she went to her mother's house, the husband, it is alleged, has made threats against his wife's life. A warrant was placed in the hands of an officer for the arrest of her husband, who is employed on Smithfield street.

[Before Alderman McMasters.]

INTERFERING WITH AN OFFICER.

Officer Thomas Connor lodged an information on Saturday against James Roney and a man named McAbee, charging them with resisting an officer while in the discharge of his duty. The officer had a warrant for the arrest of a woman, and the defendants, it is alleged, interfered with him and endeavored to prevent the execution of it. They were arrested and held in three hundred dollars bail each for trial at Court.

[Before Alderman Morrow.]

ALLEGED WIFE DESERTION.

John G. Raum, a resident of Sharpsburg, was arrested yesterday, an information having been lodged against him by his wife, Mrs. Magdalena Raum. Mrs. Raum alleges that her husband deserted her on the 10th of March last, and since that time he has neglected and refused to provide or contribute to her support. The accused was held to bail for his app arance for a hearing.

[Before Justice Lipp, of Birmingham.]

FELONIOUS ASSAULT ON THE HIGHWAY.

Henry Helfner made an information yesterday before this Justice, charging three men named Joseph Beran, Reuben Brown and John Fickly, with felonious assault and battery. Mr. Helfner alleges that while going along the Brownsville Turnpike road on Saturday night he was attacked by the defendants, who b at him severely with "handy billies" and drew knives on him, and it it had not been for the interference of s gentlemen who happened along the road at the time they would have murdered him. The accused were all arrested and held to bail for a hearing.

[Before Justice Ammon, of East Birmingham.]

DESTROYING FRUIT.

Calvert Russell brought suit on Saturday against John Fettner, Joseph Welser and Richard Smith, for malicious mischief. The defendant's are charged with having entered the prosecutor's garden, in East Birmingham, on Thursday night last, breaking down the garden fence and stealing and destroying the fruit. They were held for a hearing.

[Before Burgess Barker, of South Pittsburgh.]

FIGHT AT MANSFIELD.

A fight occurred at the village of Mansfield on Friday night, between a party of coal diggers and railroad men, which resulted in one of the parties being considerably used up. A telegraphic dispatch was sent to Burgess Barker, of South Pittsburgh, who sent one or two officers who arrested a man named Haley, one of the aggressors, and brought him to the Burgess's office. In default of bail he was committed to jail for a hearing to-morrow.

[Before Alderman Strain.]

OBSTRUCTING LEGAL PROCESS.

Officer John Barry appeared yesterday and made an information against Hugh Fitzpatrick, charging him with obstructing legal process. The officer alleges that he had an execution to serve against the defendant, and that when he went to make the levy the defendant prevented him from executing the process. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of the accused.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY CASE.

Wm. Kendry was arrested on a charge of assault and battery preferred by Henry Hart. The parties occupied the same house in the Eighth Ward, and a dispute arose between them in regard to the water privileges, which resulted, it is alleged, in Kendry attacking and beating Hart. The accused has been held to bail for a hearing

Christena Carson made oath charging Mrs. Catharine McKee, Emilie and Mary McKee with assault and battery. It appears that a quarrel arose between the defendants, who occupy adjoining houses in the Seventh ward, in regard to the use of a bake oven, when the defendants assaulted the prosecutrix, and, as is alleged, beat her with broomsticks. The case was held for a hearing.

[Before Alderman Thomas.]

ALLEGED PERJURY.

George Briggs, a resident of Oakland township, was before Alderman Thomas on a charge of wilful and corrupt perjury, preferred against him by Aaron Grant, who alleges that the defendant made false and perjurious statements in a legal proceeding pending before an Alderman of the Sixth ward. A hearing was had last night, when the defendant gave bail for a further appearance to-night.

SHAMEFUL ROWDYISM.

A Young Man Attacked by Rowdies and Seriously Injured—Arrest of the Supposed Ruffians.

The residents of the Third and Sixth wards have for years been annoyed by a gang of dissolute and worthless young men, who have organized themselves into a band, with the suitable cognomen or "Mudlarks," and who, by their lawless conduct, have became a terror to the respectable and peaceable citizens of the district. Efforts have been made frequently by the city authorities to break up this organization, and although many of its members have been arrested and punished, still it appears to flourish and increase in strength, until it is no longer safe for a person to pass along not only the private streets and alleys after nightfall, but even Wylie street or Pennsylvania avenue. Many of the corners are nightly crowded by these scoundrels, who insult passers-by, and take advantage of every opportunity to assault them. The limited police force of the city and the almost certain exemption from detection, is undoubtedly one cause of this rowdyism, and no change for the better can be reasonably be looked for until the City Councils place at the disposal of the Mayor a complete and fully organized force.

On Monday night the "Mudlarks" held a high carnival, and their outrageous proceedings resulted in a peaceable and inoffending young man being injured so severely that his life is dispaired of. During the early portion of the evening they acted very disorderly in the vicinity of Washington street and Pennsylvania avenue, and about midnight, at the instance of several citizens, the watchman on that beat summoned assistance and endeavored to arrest them. Upon the appearance of the police, however, the rowdies assailed them with bricks and stones and kept them at bay. They then started along Washington street, and meeting a young man named Hugh Boyle, an employee of the Fort Pitt Glass Works, proceeding quietly to his work, they committed an unprovoked assault upon him, knocking him down with bricks, breaking his nose and injuring him seriously on the head. They left their victim lying on the street, where he was found by the watchmen, who conveyed him to Dr. Jones's office, on Wylie street, where his wounds were dressed, after which he was removed to his residence on Prospect street. The police then followed up the rowdies, and succeeded in arresting three of their number, named Barney O'Donnell, Terrence Daily and James Donovan, the former said to be Captain of the band, who were at once conveyed to the watchhouse. Yesterday the father of the injured man appeared before the Mayor, and entered a complaint against the party, charging them with felonious assault and battery. A hearing was fixed for last evening, but it was afterwards postponed until this afternoon at four o'clock. Boyle's condition was considered critical last evening, his physicians having but slight hopes of his recovery.

WORKINGMEN'S CITY CONVENTION.—At a meeting of the Labor Reform Executive Committee, held on Monday evening, a resolution was adopted calling upon the workingmen of Pittsburgh to assemble at the usual election precincts on Saturday, November 2d, for the purpose of electing two delegates from each precinct to a city convention, which will be held on Wednesday evening, November 6th, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the respective city offices of the consolidated city, to be filled at the approaching municipal election.

INCENDIARY FIRE IN EAST BIRMINGHAM.—A fire occurred in East Birmingham on Saturday night, resulting in the total destruction of the coal tipple of Mr. Bigley. The flames were first discovered by some persons living in the immediate neighborhood, and who ran down to the shed and endeavored to extinguish it. It had gained too much headway, however, and the building was destroyed. The loss will amount to about one thousand dollars. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

THE SCULLING MATCH.—Mr. James Hamill received a telegraphic dispatch yesterday from New York, announcing that Mckiel would not leave for this city before Saturday. As the race has been announced to take place on Wednesday of next week, Mckiel will not have much opportunity to become acquainted with the course.

WOODS ON FIRE.—The woods in the vicinity of Street's Run caught fire on Friday afternoon last, and have been burning ever since. Considerable damage is being done to fences, and several attempts have been made to check the headway of the flames, but with little effect. The grass and leaves are so dry that it is feared great damage will yet result from it.

TRINITY CHOIR IN CLEVELAND.—The Cleveland, Ohio, papers of Monday, announce that the excellent choir of the Trinity Church, Pittsburgh, consisting of men and boys, under the direction of Mr. W. P. Marshall, were on a visit to that city and were to take part in the services yesterday morning and evening in the Trinity Church, of that city.

BURGLARY.—On Monday night the gun manufactory of Mr. Herman Schalte was entered and robbed of a portion of its contents, consisting of one rifle, three double barrel shot guns, ten revolvers and a quantity of ammunition, etc. The thieves succeeded in escaping with their booty.

COAL MINERS' STRIKE.—The coal miners at Keel Ridge, near Sharon, Mercer county, have gone on a "strike," in consequence of an alleged attempt by the employers to reduce their wages twenty cents on the ton.

Reduction in Prices.

We observe that William Ward, the enterprising manager of the universally popular Pennsylvania Avenue Livery and Sale Stables No. 138 and 140 Pennsylvania avenue, has changed the tariff of rates at his mammoth establishment, by reducing them, and we have no doubt but what this change will be liberally appreciated. Carriages for funerals can now be had at Mr. Ward's stables at only four dollars, and hearses at only five dollars. This is a very decided reduction in price, for making which Mr. Ward deserves to be sustained by the public. We cordially commend this concern to our readers, and assure them that they can obtain the best "turnouts" extant at moderate prices.

"Or sink or swim,
Send danger from the East into the West;
So honor cross it from the North to South,
And let them grapple. Oh! the blood more stirs,
To rouse a lion than to start a hare."

But many would rather face even a lion (provided he were safely caged), than to have their hair all fall out before the period of old age, and the disagreeable "start" the hair sometimes takes toward premature greyness is capable of stirring the blood a good deal. If it only stirs you to obtain "Barrett's Vegetable Hair Restorative," a sure cure and preventative to these evils you will have your blood stirred to some purpose.

Immense Demand for the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

Not long ago we referred to the unprecedented demand for the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, the Agents of which are Messrs. William Sumner & Co., No. 27 Fifth street. The popularity of this machine is based upon its great merit and superiority over all other machines, and it has accordingly received the highest awards at every fair where it has been exhibited, including the first premium at the Paris Exposition. Since last Monday morning Messrs. Sumner & Co. have sold forty-five machines, and the demand for them does not diminish. This is indubitable proof of the public opinion on the sewing machine question, and shows that the Wheeler & Wilson Machine is more greatly prized than any other.

Systems Run Down.

Persons often allow their systems to "run down," or rather run them down by over work, accompanied by a neglect of the proper means of invigoration. The result is what is called "GENERAL DEBILITY;" in other words, a failure and partial collapse of the physical forces, accompanied usually by great depression of spirits.

The best remedy in such cases is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Whether the state of exhaustion has been brought on by excessive physical labor, dissipation, anxiety of mind, exposure, or any other cause, the remedial effect of this great stomachic will be found equally prompt and certain. As a restorative, after severe sickness has prostrated the bodily and mental energies, it is pronounced by competent medical authorities, "THE BEST TONIC IN USE." If men were not foolishly careless about their health, and over confident in themselves, they would always, when engaged in any work that required great exertion, use corresponding means of sustaining their strength. For this purpose HOSTETTER'S BITTERS are invaluable. All toilers should use them as an invigorant.

For those constantly employed in in-door occupations, especially in crowded workshops, they may be reckoned as the very best safeguard of health. Where there is a predisposition to constipation, or a tendency to biliousness, they may be truly said to be a specific for which there is no substitute.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

TUESDAY EVENING, October 22, 1867.

The demand for money to-day on the several discount houses was equally as pressing as on any day during the past week. Almost every department of business was represented either in the shape of new paper or renewals—the latter class generally preponderating. But notwithstanding the close turn to the local money market and the general tightness there is very little business for the notaries. All good named paper can be satisfactorily arranged, and protests are comparatively few. Anything under twelve per cent. between bankers and their depositors may be considered a highly favorable rate, and on the open market fifteen and eighteen per cent. are the prices current.

—The following statement exhibits the business of the Pittsburgh Clearing House, for the week ending Saturday, October 19th:

	EXCHANGES.	BALANCES.
Oct. 14	$435,661 89	$82,157 28

Totals	$2,298,573 02	$411,125 86

—The advancing tendency in Government securities has checked the disposition to sell. The quotations in New York reported to-day to the banking houses of W. B. McVay & Co. and James T. Brady & Co., show the following changes:

U. S. 6s 1881	111½

—The following stocks were sold Tuesday evening, October 22, on second floor of Commercial Sales Rooms, 106 Smithfield street, by A. McIlwain, Auctioneer.

Boatmen's Insurance Company	26 50

—There is nothing new in regard to the spurious seven-thirties. The vexed question as to the responsibility is still discussed, and what will be the opinion of the legal officers of the Government is not known. On one side it is urged that, the notes being undoubted forgeries, and consequently without value, those dealers who have sold them to the Government are bound to refund the money, and should fall back on the correspondents from whom they purchased the notes. These dealers claim that the case involves two questions—one of expediency, and one of law. As to the first, it is argued that the public securities will suffer in price very severely if the risks of the dealers and holders which are now so heavy are augmented as they would be by an adverse decision. On the point of law the argument is that the Treasury is in the position of a bank that has paid a forged check or note upon itself, in which case it can have no claim upon the innocent person from whom the spurious instrument was received.

The Treasury Department has made a formal demand for reclamation upon the original receivers of the counterfeit 7-30 notes. The parties addressed have not yet made any response to the demand for restitution. It is generally understood, however, that they will not comply with the request of the Government, to redeem the bogus notes transmitted to Washington by them, unless they are compelled to do so by legal measures.

Mr. McCulloch claims that securities bought or converted by an Assistant Treasurer, are at the risk of those from whom the latter received them until they are finally examined by the department at Washington. When Mr. McCulloch receives the answer of the dealers who placed the forged notes in the hands of the Assistant Treasurer at New York, he will obtain the legal opinion of some Government law officer on the merits of the case, and upon the grounds taken in this forthcoming opinion, further proceedings will in a great measure depend.

—A very sensible advance is shown in the New York Railway list to-day, particularly in the leading fancy, Erie, which rose from 70 to 73¾. The bull clique last week by Tuesday of the friends of this stock that by Tuesday of this week they would have established an advance up to 75, but they have not quite fulfilled their promise, but approximating sharply. We give below the quotations received at noon to-day:

Michigan Southern	81
Cleveland & Pittsburgh	84¾
Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago	98¼
Chicago & Northwestern	47¾

—The money market at Cincinnati is thus noticed by the Commercial of this morning: "The applications for loans to-day were more liberal, and most of the houses reported a pressing demand. Local checking was also heavy, and a decrease in currency was the general experience. The market was reported close, and the indications are in favor of greater stringency. The banks in some cases are calling upon borrowers to pay obligations that have been received from time to time, which was one cause of the increased demand for loans on the street. The regular discount houses are generally refusing all outside paper and limiting their favors to depositors, while these do not in all cases succeed in obtaining accommodations. Rates of interest are very firm. The leading figures for unexceptionable names are 10@12 per cent., the former the rate between bankers and depositors, though in the open market good commercial paper has been sold at 15 per cent., and on the street even higher figures have been paid for temporary loans."

—At Chicago, the Journal says: The week opens with an active demand for money, mostly from grain dealers, though all classes of business are more or less represented among the borrowers, and the market rules quite close—some houses quoting it stringent. The regular discount houses are confining their favors to depositors, and all outside names are obliged to seek the street. The rates of interest are unchanged.

Oil City Oil Market.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Commercial.

OIL CITY, October 22, 1867.

The market for crude was inactive and prices very irregular, ranging from $2 60 to 3 00 on the creek, and $3 40 to 3 60 delivered in Oil City. Market weak with tendency to go still further downward. Weather pleasant.

PRODUCE AND GENERAL MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL, TUESDAY EVENING, October 22, 1867.

We have nothing new to report in regard to the general markets. Trade is very dull in every branch of business. Our rivers, with the exception of the Monongahela, continue unnavigable, and this adds materially to the dullness of trade, and until a rise takes place no change in regard to trade is now looked for. There is a weaker feeling in flour, and prices somewhat lower. The provision market is quiet. Receipts of grain are small and prices high.

The receipts of some of the leading articles of produce per river and rail, since our last, were as follows: Flour 1,501 bbls; apples 665 bbls; cheese 30 bxs; corn 1,421 sacks; wheat 401 sacks; barley 1,026 sacks; rye 141 sacks, and oats 888 sacks.

We quote as follows, which are the wholesale store prices, unless otherwise noted:

APPLES—Receipts are large and in fair demand at $3 50@4 50 ₱ bbl, as to quality.

BUTTER—The supply is inadequate to the demand. Choice sells readily at 35c ₱ lb.

EGGS—Market poorly supplied. Sales are readily made at 26@27c ₱ doz.

BACON—Trade moderate and prices a shade lower. We quote sugar cured hams at 24c; plain hams at 17½c; plain convassed hams at 19c, and sides at 16½c ₱ lb.

LARD—We quote at 14½@15c ₱ lb. Sales of country lard were made at 14c ₱ lb.

LARD OIL—We quote No. 1 lard oil at $1 12@1 15, and No. 2 at 90@95c ₱ gallon.

CHEESE—Trade moderate at 16c ₱ lb for factory; Hamburg at 15@16c, and Goshen at 18c ₱ lb.

BEANS—Receipts small. Choice readily command $4 ₱ bush.

HAY—There are small receipts. Some extra timothy sold, from country wagon, early this morning, at $20@21 ₱ ton. The common range is from $15@19 ₱ ton.

POTATOES—Choice peachblows are quoted at $1@1 05 ₱ bush. Sales of Jersey sweet were made at $4 50@5 ₱ bbl.

ONIONS—Prices for choice onions are ranging from $4@4 75 ₱ bbl.

ASHES—We note sales of pearls at 13c ₱ lb; refined at 5½c ₱ lb, and soda ash at 5c ₱ lb.

SEED—There is very little demand for seed, and but light receipts. We quote clover at $9 50, and timothy seed at $2 75@3 00 ₱ bush.

OATS—There is a declining tendency. We note sales of 700 bush from depot, at 65@66c; 200 bush do, at 68c, and various lots from store at 68@70c ₱ bush.

CORN—There is very little doing in corn. Receipts and stocks are light. Sales reported of 3 cars shelled at $1 28 ₱ bush.

BARLEY—We note sales of 1000 bushels, delivered, from store, at $1 38 ₱ bushel.

RYE—Sales noted of 1,500 bushels No. 1 rye, from store, at $1 48 ₱ bushel.

WHEAT—Receipts small. Red winter is in demand at $2 50@2 55 and white wheat at $2 60@2 65 ₱ bushel.

FLOUR—The demand has fallen off considerably, and price are a shade lower. Winter from store may be quoted at $12@12 50, and spring at $10 75@12 25 ₱ bbl. The following are the Pearl Mill prices of choice flour:

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—There was more animation in the demand, on Saturday last, and although prices were not quotably higher, yet the general tone of the market was decidedly more favorable for sellers. City butchers and feeders bought quite freely, yet the bulk of the business was done by city packers, who, anticipating an advance during the coming week, brought up all the desirable stock at quotations, leaving only about 1,800 head of inferior to common stock in the yards unsold on Saturday evening. The receipts during the past week were the largest ever before seen in this market, in one week, and drovers and sellers, instead of fault-finding at the condition of trade during the week, ought to thank their stars that they have suffered no greater losses. With 13,400 head in one week, fully two-thirds of which were common to fair grades, with only a light proportion of choice stock, it is surprising that prices have not receded much lower than they have. The following were the

CLOSING PRICES:

Extra Beeves—Fine, fat, well formed, 4 to 6 year old steers, and averaging 1,350 lbs and upwards......$6 75@7 25
Prime Beeves—Good, well fatten, finely-formed steers, averaging from 1,100 to 1,400 lbs, at......5 75@6 50

Medium Class—Medium steers and good cows, fit for city slaughter and averaging 800@1,000 lbs, at......3 50@4 50
Stock Cattle—Common cattle in decent flesh, averaging 700@1,000 lbs, at......3 00@4 50
Inferior—Light and thin cows and steers......2 25@2 75

HOGS—With indications of favorable weather for curing during the coming week, and also under prospect of a decided advance in prices, packers "went in on their nerve" and gobbled up about 5,500 head, which they will hold over until the coming week. This rather unexpected move on local account imparted an unusual degree of life to the trade, and prices responded to the increased activity by an advance of 10@15c, the sales pens being cleared, with the exception of about 3,800 head. Sales were chiefly at $6@6 90 for fair to good smooth droves, and $5@5 90 for common to fair grades.

LOUISVILLE.

At the Bourbon House the cattle market during the past week is reported as one hard for drovers. The market ruled dull and prices on the medium quality declined fully 25c, while good shipping cattle advanced 25c during the fore part of the week, but were not active at the close. Sales range at 5½@6½c for shipping; 3½@5c for good butchers' stuff; 2@3c for common, and common for inferior and rough.

Hogs—The market is very dull and prices declining. Sales range at 5¾@6¼c for best, and 5@5½c for common and fair.

Sheep—Good heavy sheep are in good demand at 3½@4½c for such as weigh 110 to 150 lbs average, but for medium have declined to $2 per head, and sell at $1 75@2 50 ₱ head. Lambs sell at $1 75@3 ₱ head.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Offerings continue light, but prices for the quality of the breaks are about the same as have ruled for several weeks past. The sales on Saturday last at three of the auction warehouses amounted to 37 hhds, with rejection of bids on 4 hhds. Prices were as follows, viz: 1 hhd at $3 25; 1 at $5; 1 at $13 00@13 75; 3 at $12 00@12 40; 1 at $11 25; 1 at $10; 2 at $8 50; 2 at $7 90@7 80; 4 at $7 60; 4 at $6 00@6 45; 8 at $5 50@5 80; 2 at $4 00@4 65.

THE RIVER AND MATTERS ALONG THE WHARF.—Below the Suspension Bridge business was dull; nothing doing; everybody waiting for a rise in our rivers. Until that event arrives we will be under the necessity of reporting dull times. The prospect for a rise is not by any means favorable. Above the Suspension Bridge a fair amount of activity was perceptible. The United States Mail Line is running two boats per day, morning and evening. The People's Line boats leave daily at 5 P. M. Trade appears brisk. Freights are plenty to all points on the Monongahela. The river remains stationary.

THE Dispatch, of St. Louis, says:

The merchants and capitalists of St. Louis have allowed the great trade of the Mississippi to go elsewhere, from the lack of proper foresight and energy. The grain is all going to Chicago, while the Southern merchants, principally, buy their supplies in Cincinnati and ship them via St. Louis. The business men of St. Louis have proved themselves in every respect unequal to the situation, and have allowed the East to euchre them on every point. The little one-horse town of Dubuque received in one day last week over one hundred thousand bushels of wheat from Minnesota, which was shipped to Chicago by rail. This and hundreds of thousands of bushels more could have been secured to St. Louis with the proper effort. The necessity of live, active business men is much needed, and until we wake up, or import some from Chicago or elsewhere, we must continue to present the humiliating spectacle of a one-horse concern.

MEMPHIS.—The Avalanche, of the 18th, says:

The Ozark cleared for White river with a good trip. The Victor No. 2 was sold yesterday, by Capt. House to Sim & Co., for the Red river trade. Price paid $4,000. She leaves for New Orleans on Saturday, and will enter the new Red river line. The Goldfinch will be here on Monday, to ply regularly in the Memphis and Osceola trade. The Michigan cleared for Louisville list evening, with a few bales of cotton.

The President of the Vicksburg packet Company has closed a contract with the Department for two mails per week between Vicksburg and New Orleans. Compensation, $25,000 per year, or $50,000 for three mails.

Alexander Cook died last evening of yellow fever. He has for a long time been clerk on the river, and was a young man of pleasing and genial manners.

THE Great Republic is acknowledged to be a faster boat than the Richmond. The Louisville Democrat has a long article in regard to fast steamboats from which we make the following extract:

"Why don't somebody build a boat, taking the cat-fish for a model? What speed could a fish make if the bulge of its body was but a short distance from its tail? Besides, what effect would its tail have upon it, if it depended upon it for a rudder? We could name ten or fifteen boats built within the last ten years for fast boats, few of which proved to be successful, or to possess much speed. Some are examined into the cause, and we find the fault is in the bulge of the wheels and lack of power to force them through the water. Stern wheel boats, because they are running away from the water. They have no water to drag after them. They have only to open the water at the bow and the way is clear. Since the war few fast boats have been built. The Robt. E. Lee stands at the head. The Great Republic and Ruth, next. One or two boats have been built to eclipse them in speed, but, so far, they have proved failures. The Richmond was built at Madison, Indiana, for a fast boat, but too much newspaper flattery together with 'great expectations' disappointed the public, and it yet remains to be seen whether she will be a fast boat or not."

ST. LOUIS.—The Democrat on the situation: We greatly fear a cry of distress from low water will soon be heard from above the Rapids of the Mississippi. Falling at St. Paul, at Dubuque, at Davenport, at Muscatine, at Montrose, is the burden of the latest advices. The downward bound Keokuk packets, Harry Johnson and Lucy Bertram, grounded at the head of Iowa River, some five miles above the mouth of the Illinois. The Illinois is getting no better and the Missouri worse. Nor can we speak encouragingly of the river hence to Cairo, for a steamer bound down has been aground at Hat Island for perhaps 48 hours. As the difficulties of navigation increase, of course our receipts decrease proportionably. Arrived and departed—We had yesterday the Agnes, Hawkeye, Jasper and Harry Johnson, from Upper Mississippi; Sherman and Commonwealth, from Lower Mississippi; Beardstown, from Peoria, to be repaired and leave again on Monday, and perhaps the Jenny Lewis, from Miami. The Agnes has laid up again. It is believed the Commonwealth will lose again right away. The Agnes and two barges brought in 4,500 sacks, 200 barrels, &c. She was gone fourteen days. The departures were scant—Belle Memphis, for Memphis; Jasper and Harry Johnson, for Keokuk; Goldfinch and Kate Kearney, the latter with a very small crew, as her mission is to help the Bertram, and that alone. The Virginia will leave Tuesday for New Orleans. The Sherman brought the report of the packet City of Cairo, bound here to Memphis, being at Hat Island on the 17th, at 3 P. M., out of the channel and broadside on to the point of the bar, at which place the Sherman found only four and a half feet in the channel. The Gipsey and two barges were assisting the Cairo. The Marble City came along afterward. She attempted to reach the Cairo, but failed to do so, and proceeded on. Pat. Welsh, deck passenger on the Arthur, from New Orleans, died October 18, and was buried in Illinois, below St. Louis. There has been this year an unusual mortality among boatmen, and we have now to report the death of no less than four. Leonard Mitchell, engineer, died at his residence in this city, on Thursday night. John Read, engineer of the J. N. Kellogg, died of yellow fever, in Memphis, on Tuesday last; the disease was contracted in New Orleans. George Sanford, of the Magenta, died at Vicksburg, and the death of A. Hartupee is also reported. Captain D. C. Basey has purchased the steam ferry boat Rockford for $4,500, and will take her to Brunswick, Mo., where she will be used as a packet between that place and Miami, and also in making regular weekly trips to Utica, on Grand river.

THE "Belle Lee" was launched at Louisville on Saturday. We condense the following from the Sunday Democrat:

HER NAME—THE CHRISTENING.

Captain McGill complimented one of Louisville's fairest daughters in the selection of a pretty name for his splendid steamer. She was named Belle Lee, in honor of the esteemed daughter of our fellow-citizen, James Bridgeford, Esq., and the accomplished wife of our clever friend, Col. Phil. Lee, of this city. She is named after a lady known for her many virtues, beautiful, accomplished, and, above all, loved and beloved by all who know her. In consequence of the illness of the lady for whom the boat was named, and her inability to be present on the occasion, Miss Belle Stevenson, of New Orleans, Louisiana, was chosen to represent Mrs. Lee, and the honor of christening the boat devolved upon her. Mrs. Lee was ably and happily represented by Miss Stevenson, who christened the Belle Lee with a degree of pride Miss Stevenson is as fair as she is beautiful and accomplished, and the South never gave birth to a more modest flower than she.

CONCLUSION.

The Peytona left the Indiana shore and went over to the Lee for the purpose of towing her to our city wharf, where she will receive her finishing touches and cabin outfit. Tying on to the new boat, she returned to Jeffersonville, took on board a large number who had gone over from this side of the river, and returned to this side of the river and landed her at the foot of Fourth street, where the crowd came ashore, delighted with the trip.

THE BELLE LEE.

This new and handsome steamer's dimensions, builders and furnishers are as follows: Length of hull, 300 feet; depth of hold, 9½ feet; width of floor, 37 feet; width of beam, 43 feet. Hull, by Stuart & Barmore; cabin, by McClaran & Co.; machinery, by Daviess & Co.; boilers, by John Pearce; sheet-iron work, by William Weir; upholstering, by H. Whembolf; furniture, by Dickinson & Bennett; china, silver and pantry ware, Walton & Bro.; painting, by John Briner; carpets, by Hamilton, Anderson & Co.

She will be an "out and out" Louisville-built boat with the exception of her hull, and we have no doubt that there will not be a finer or a fleeter boat ever trouble the waters of the Ohio or Mississippi river than Captain McGill's beautiful Louisville and New Orleans packet Belle Lee.

By Last Night's Mail.

We condense the following from the Cincinnati Commercial of Tuesday: The Peerless, Capt. Hueston, has taken the place of the America, in the Big Sandy trade, and leaves for that point this noon. Mr. Charles Matthews, of the Silver Cloud No. 2, arrived here from Cairo yesterday. He reports the Silver Cloud laid up at Cairo. The Alaska, Captain Frank J. Oakes's new boat, was out on a trial trip yesterday. The excursionists were well pleased with her performance, and pronounced her a perfect success. Mr. Geo. W. Lilley is connected with Geo. L. Johnson & Co., in the steamboat agency business.

CAIRO, October 21.—The Albert brought 390 bbls potatoes and 10 tons sundries for reshipment South. The Luella brought 73 coops of chickens and 24 kegs lard for New Orleans, and 9 tons merchandise for Columbus. She reports twenty-four inches at Cumberland Bar. The Cobweb is aground at Shawneetown. The Kellogg arrived from New Orleans with a disabled rudder and wheel; she will repair here temporarily and go to St. Louis. She was compelled to leave three barges containing 600 tons of iron and turpentine at Phillips's Bar; one pilot left her at New Orleans with the yellow fever, and the second engineer died with it below Memphis. There is one case still on board. She has only four hands left of the original crew shipped at St. Louis. The remainder deserted or were left behind sick.

River fell two inches. Weather cloudy; mercury 70.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., October 21.—Weather cloudy for a change and very warm, with imminent signs of rain. River falling steadily one and a half to two inches daily. No change in the channel—depth, twenty-two inches on French Island, and twenty-six inches on Cumberland Bar. Port list—Linton, Cairo to Owensboro; Pink Varble, Eastport to Louisville; Success, Louisville to Cairo; Fannie Brandeis, to Cairo; James Gray, to Green river; Phantom, to Eastport. The Pink Varble was light. The Success had a good trip. The Linton went to Owensboro in place of the Sullivan, having 40 hhds of tobacco engaged. The Phantom and Fannie Brandeis goes out full. The Ollie Sullivan is raised, and was met by the Success at Bar Harbor. The Tempest is aground at Shawneetown Bar.

MEMPHIS.—The Avalanche, of Saturday, says: Joseph Rutledge, pilot of the steamer Arabian, having tied the boat up for debt, went on board and was struck in the face by Captain Cl. Demain. The captain was arrested for exhibiting his science. Messrs. Kindige & Co., we learn, are about to negotiate for the St. Patrick. If the sale is consummated, Captain Tom Barry will take command of her, in the Vicksburg trade. The Louisville, bound down, ran into the bank a few miles below Napoleon, on Wednesday night. Her buts were sprung, causing her to ship two feet of water, which damaged a large amount of freight in her hold. The Louisville seems doomed to hard luck this trip. She sank one of her barges above here, and has now damaged half of her remaining cargo. The Louisiana had also a tough trip, and at last accounts was aground below Vicksburg. The Ned Tracy cleared for St. Louis last night, with 300 bales of cotton. The Rowena, from White river, brought in 240 bales of cotton. The Dan Atle, from Vicksburg, brought up 56 bales of cotton.

The Post, of Friday says:

The Victor No 2 has been sold for $4,000, and will enter the Red river trade. Captain Blake, of the Rubicon, says that the prominent merchants of Vicksburg deny that there has been a case of yellow fever in that city. He says that the panic was very great for several days, that every available means of transportation were used—even carts were brought into requisition. Every room in the St. Patrick was engaged, but she failed to arrive. Captain A. Q. Ross returned from Helena on the Rubicon. A rumor was afloat, this morning, to the effect that Captain John T. Shirley had bought the Marine Ways at Paducah, which are to be brought here. Also, that the city has taken $10,000 stock in it. The officers of the Rubicon report but little sickness along the coast. Captain Larry Harmstad is agent for the Blue Line, and gives through bills of lading for cotton to all eastern cities.
